

JOHN M'GAROTY WAS GIVEN BAD BEATING

By Man Who Invited Him to His Room—Man and Woman Sentenced for Statutory Offense

You may talk about your prize fights and badly beaten up visages, but please withhold your judgment on the champion of them all when it comes to taking a bad beating until you have seen the countenance of John McGaroty. John startled even the stoical superintendent of police when he showed his face in police court this morning in response to Clerk Toye's call.

John was not a defendant. Oh, no, on the contrary, John was a very willing witness against Joseph Dupuis who was charged with assault and battery upon him as well as being held on a statutory offense. According to McGaroty's testimony the defendant invited him into his domicile, 35 John street, to have a little nip of something stronger than tea and McGaroty went forthwith. Just what led up to the clash is not quite certain, but one fact is very positive. John received a fearful beating. He told the court the defendant hit him over the head with a chair, and Supt. Welch allowed that the chair must have been reduced to kindling wood. John's face resembled a war map and he said he was anything but a well man.

Unconscious Three Hours
McGaroty laid in the house for over three hours before he regained consciousness. He then made his way to the street and at once summoned Officers Creamer and Sullivan to the scene of his abuse. The two officers found Dupuis and a woman companion in a state of intoxication and removed both to the station.

Dupuis and the woman, Mary J. Brown, each received a sentence of six months to the house of correction and an additional four months was also tacked on to Dupuis for his assault upon McGaroty. Neither man nor woman had anything to say in their own defence.

CHARGE OF MURDER AGAINST BRAKEMAN

Lowell Boy Who Was Killed in State of Montana Was Pushed Through Hole in Freight Car

COUNTY ATTORNEY CHARGES MURDER

The Carroll boy's mother, Mrs. Fannie Carroll, has received the following letter relative to the death of her son, from County Attorney C. R. Tisor:

Dear Madam:

Miles City, Montana, August 7, 1913

I am very sorry to convey to you the sad news that your son, Thomas Carroll, met his death near here, on the fifth day of August by being run over by a train.

The circumstances as disclosed by the coroner's inquest is as follows:

Your two sons, Thomas and James, together with two other boys, were riding in a box car between Glendive and Miles City, Montana. They were asleep in the car when the brakeman came in about 4.30 in the morning and drawing a six-shooter compelled them to climb through the end window of the car, and your son Thomas in going through the window either lost his hold or was pushed from behind, causing him to fall down between the cars on his head and was run over and killed.

I am prosecuting attorney for this county and I am going to file a charge against this man, charging him with murder.

(Signed)

C. R. TISOR,
County Attorney

Thomas Carroll, the Lowell boy who was run over and killed by a train in Miles City, Montana, is believed to have been pushed from the car in which he was riding by a brakeman and the authorities have started a thorough investigation. The parents of the boy have received a letter from an attorney there stating that the brakeman thought to be responsible for the boy's death will be arraigned on the charge of manslaughter.

An inquest was held over the remains of Carroll and the coroner's jury decided that Carroll came to his death by being forcibly ejected out of the end door of a box car.

The story of the inquest, as taken from a Miles City paper received in this city, today is as follows:

At the inquest over the remains of Thomas Carroll, which was held by Coroner Hawkins yesterday, the jury consisting of John McCausland, foreman; James Spies, H. M. Hanson, Mike Wilmes, John Augack and Gus Anderson brought in a verdict that deceased came to his death by being forcibly ejected out of the end door of a box car on the Northern Pacific railway while the train was going about the rate of 15 or 20 miles an hour.

Refused to Testify
Testimony on only one side of the case was taken as the railroad men, acting under advice of counsel, declined to give testimony, the only grounds on which such a refusal could be considered by the coroner being that such evidence as they would give might be considered incriminating and as the case will undoubtedly be taken into district court by the county attorney, the defense will not be heard until that time, so that at this time only the statement of the companions of deceased are available.

Brothers Were Together
From this testimony it appears that Thomas Carroll, his brother, James, Jack and William Delaine were on their way to Butte, the Carroll boys coming from Lowell, Mass., and the Delaine boys being on their way from Portland, Maine. The Carroll boys have an uncle, a miner living at Butte. The boys were traveling in a box car and a brakeman, Chas. McGaroty, being identified as the man, entered the car when the train was in the vicinity of Condon, east of Fallon, and ordered them to climb out. James Carroll was the first to crawl out the end door and the Delaine boys followed. All got out safely except the deceased. The others claim that he came through the door as though he had been kicked or pushed through, and he fell between the cars to the tracks. James Carroll claimed that he attempted to get the train crew to stop the train and take the remains with the train to some town, but that they refused. It was also stated that at least two passenger trains and one freight passed over the body after the accident.

Body Horribly Mangled
The body was cut to pieces and the remains were unrecognizable. Justice of the Peace Graft of Fallon heard of the accident and wired for the coroner and undertaker and instructions were given to the conductor of train No. 2 to take them on at Miles City, and let them off at Condon, which was done, and the remains were by them brought to Miles City.

PROCLAIM GENERAL STRIKE IN ITALY

Syndicalist and Socialist Organizations Issued Manifesto — Leaders Preach Revolution

MILAN, Italy, Aug. 11.—A general strike throughout Italy was proclaimed in a manifesto issued today by the Syndicalist and Socialist Workmen's organizations here.

The manifesto urges all workmen's unions to take immediate action and to carry on the strike to the bitter end.

Preach Revolution

Some of the leaders of the strike movement are preaching revolution, saying:

"We do not wish to follow the example of America where certain strikes have lasted as long as 13 months, the strikers receiving wages from the unions but in the end meeting moral and financial disaster. Here the strikers claim not only economic advantages, but also the subversion of the present basis of the capitalist oligarchy. The strike must, therefore, become a kind of national earthquake, overthrowing the socialist organization, resting on the explanations of the workers for private advantages."

Every group of strikers today has been attacked by the troops, who in many cases have been stoned by strikers singing anarchistic songs.

Owing to the energy with which the troops and the police have acted, the street cars were able to operate on the various lines.

At Chiavari, about three miles outside of Milan, a striker lay down across the tracks in front of an approaching passenger train. The engineer was just able to stop the train before it reached the man, who then rose and called on the train crew to strike. The station master seized the man, some of whose comrades interfered and beat the officer. A detachment of carabinieri then came upon the scene and arrested all the strikers present.

According to despatches received here from Rome, Pisa and other places the workmen have made only a feeble response to the call for a general strike.

AUTHORITIES AT ROME READY TO REPRESS ANY DISORDERS

ROME, Italy, Aug. 11.—The authorities here are holding the garrison in readiness to repress any disorders which may occur in connection with the general strike ordered by the labor leaders, but very few of the workmen appear disposed to join in the movement.

Both the Quirinal and the Vatican are strongly guarded.

80 Arrests Made—Citi-

Insults to Flag

MINOT, N. D., Aug. 11.—State troops may be called out today to preserve order, if an attempt is made by Industrial Workers of the World to continue the street meetings which late last night resulted in the arrest of 80 persons. Incensed over alleged insults to the American flag, citizens attacked Industrial Workers and scenes of excitement followed. The police were unable to control the rioters and called upon the sheriff and the fire department. Arrests still were being made today, although the jail was crowded to overflowing.

A threatened mob surged about the jail but later the crowd broke to this out.

Although warned against holding street meetings at which speakers attempted to encourage harvest hands to hold out for more pay, the Industrial Workers resumed their activities last night.

Industrial Workers early today wired St. Paul and Minneapolis for recruits, and a band of workers is expected to arrive before night.

TAX RATE FOR 1913 $19.40 A THOUSAND

An Increase of 40 Cents Over Last Year—Figures Issued at Office of Board of Assessors Today

The tax rate in Lowell for 1913 was announced this morning by the city assessors, and partly on account of the increase in the state and county taxes, an increase of 40 cents per $1000 of the real estate value was made, making the rate this year $19.40 per thousand, as against $19.00 last year. It was stated by one of the assessors this morning that every city and town in the commonwealth has or will increase its taxes on account of the increase in the state and county taxes.

The assessors have increased the personal valuation $1,972,524.47, and the real estate value $1,224,220, making a total increase in valuation of $3,196,744.47. Personal valuation last year was $19,297,425.90, while this year it comes to $20,370,353.37. The real estate valuation last year was $65,397,320, as against $66,621,446 this year. The 1913 valuations of buildings and land, $1912 are as follows:

Value of	1912	1913	Gain
Land	$27,219,805	$27,145,035	$74,770
Buildings	$38,181,535	$38,222,155	$40,620
Total	$65,401,340	$65,367,190	$34,150

The net gain in real estate is $1,224,220.

220, while the net gain in personal estate is $1,972,524.47, making a total net gain of $3,196,744.47.

In the poll taxes for the year 1913 there is a slight decrease in four wards while a slight gain is made in five wards. The largest loss is in ward 2, where it figures 23, this being due, it is said, to a number of Greeks leaving the city to take arms for their country.

Polls for Two Years
The 1913 poll at the time of commitment - 1912 are as follows:

Wards	1913	1912	Gain	Loss	Net
1	2742	2701	71		71
2	2392	2385		7	-7
3	2971	2959	72		72
4	2158	2152		6	-6
5	2158	2154		4	-4
6	4123	4122		1	-1
7	2158	2151		7	-7
8	2258	2210		48	-48
9	2495	2453		42	-42
Totals	24,508	24,452	275	625	349

1912 polls, 24,508.
Net loss, 349.

The assessors in preparing the tax rate have made the overlay sufficiently large to take care of all the abatements for 1913, in compliance with chapter 523 of the acts of 1913, which means that next year there will be no such thing as loans as there was this year. This is responsible for about half the increase.

State Tax Increase
The state tax increase this year is $19,721.50, while the state highway reaches $17.50. The new tax on grading, which comes for the first time in the history of Lowell is $3334.52, while the tax for auditing the municipal accounts, which was not in existence last year, is $1,197.59. The county tax increase is $3274.52. The increased levy by the city is $45,400, and the increase in valuation of $2,270,014.47, practically covers it.

The city appropriations for 1912 were $1,410,120 as against $1,195,500 this year, making an increase of $214,620. The Lowell Textile school appropriation for 1912 is the same this year, that is $3000. The state tax in 1912 was $137,157.50, while this year it is $156,160, making an increase of $18,992.50.

State Highway Tax
The state highway tax last year was

The total increase up to overlevying in 1912 was $32,137.45, while this year it is $25,594.52, making an increase of $6,542.93. The total appropriations in 1912 were $1,621,505.10, as against $1,791,107.39 this year; the increase in appropriations being $172,102.29.

Table of Tax Rates
A comparative table of the tax rates for the past ten years is shown below. The highest rate was in 1903 and 1905, when it reached $20.10 per thousand, while the lowest was in 1911, when the rate was fixed at $15.90. In 1907 the rate was the same as this year, $19.40. The table is as follows:

Year	Rate
1903	$20.10
1904	20.00
1905	20.10
1906	19.50
1907	19.40
1908	19.40

Rep. Bartholdt, Now in Europe, Writes to Lobby Committee

Investigators Got a Chance Today to Grill Lobbyist

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—After weeks of waiting the house lobby committee got a chance today to grill Martin M. Mulhall on his wholesale charges of influence with various congressmen and corruption of various members of the house. The self-styled lobbyist of the National Association of Manufacturers appeared with the senate sergeant-at-arms, who has been his constant bodyguard since his exposure.

A letter from Representative Bartholdt, now in Europe, was first produced. His letter declared no representative of the manufacturers ever influenced him, but added, that because of his vote against the Hughes amendment exempting labor unions from anti-trust prosecution under the sundry civil bill the executive committee of the manufacturers voluntarily promised him support.

Bartholdt wrote to the committee on labor I have naturally been in contact with Van Cleave and Schwedemann and also with Emery and Mulhall, but I never looked upon the latter as anything but a messenger boy and never dignified him by any serious discussion of measures pending before the committee."

When Mulhall took the stand Chairman Garrett led him through a detailed history of his life and an account of his relations with the National Association of Manufacturers beginning in 1902. He related the story he already had told the senate committee of his fight on Senator McCormack of Maryland and the alleged corruption of Downs, the senator's secretary.

LOBBY TO INVOLVE U. S. IN WAR

Pres. Wilson Shares Views of Sen. Williams Who Declared There is Attempt to Bring Clash

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—President Wilson let it be known today that he was inclined to believe there was an organized desire—proceeding from sources unknown to him—to bring on a war between the United States and Mexico. The president does not regard the movement as extensive but as very troublesome, and referred to misrepresentations in some individual newspapers. He indicated that he shared the views of Senator Williams, who declared in a speech last Saturday that an organized lobby existed to involve the United States in war.

There is no occasion for alarm, in the opinion of the president, who told cabinet members today that the last 48 hours the Mexican situation had improved materially. It was made clear by the president with those with whom he discussed the situation that the instructions to John T. Lind, his personal representative, were chiefly to inform the American government how things stood, generally, in Mexico and just what were the opportunities for the good offices of the United States in the interests of peace.

Sooner or later, it was pointed out, Mr. Lind will make certain suggestions through the American embassy, but in just what circumstances has not yet been fully determined upon. Anything in the suggestions that may properly be made public was revealed, according to administration officials here, and foreign governments will be constantly apprized of the various steps taken by the United States. This may not take place, however, for several days.

President Wilson has had no direct communication either with the Huerta government or the constitutionalist authorities, but he indicated to his cabinet today that he would welcome more information about the purpose of the constitutionalists.

It was learned, also, that the president has not yet formally considered recognition of the Huerta government, but that insofar as territory alone is concerned he regarded that held by the constitutionalists as strong enough in proportion to that controlled by the Huerta government to make recognition of the constitutionalists not wholly unjustifiable on a diplomatic standpoint.

ENVOY LIND AND HIS PARTY

ARRIVED AT MEXICO CAPITAL LAST NIGHT

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 11.—John Lind, special envoy of the president of the United States, with his party, arrived at the Mexican capital shortly after 8 o'clock last night after an all-day trip from Vera Cruz.

The police had taken extraordinary precautions to prevent any hostile demonstration against Mr. Lind or other citizens of the United States, and large detachments of police lined the streets outside the railroad station and escorted Mr. Lind and his party to the United States consulate, where they will stop for the present.

While there was no demonstration of any kind after the arrival of Mr. Lind, still the streets were crowded with a silent throng which simply looked at the American representative as he was driven through the streets.

Mr. Lind and his party had an uneventful trip from Vera Cruz, starting early this morning. He refused to make any comment or tell anything of his plans after his arrival and went directly to the consulate, retiring soon thereafter.

PRESIDENT ELLIOTT

Of B. & M. and New Haven Visits Lowell

President Howard Elliott of the Boston & Maine and the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroads, accompanied by General Manager E. E. Pollock, Civil Engineer A. R. Carleton, General Superintendent W. V. Fay and H. C. Robinson, superintendent of the southern division of the Boston & Maine, passed through this city en route to Boston yesterday afternoon after a three day trip through New Hampshire, Vermont and western Massachusetts. It was the new president's first tour through this section since his election.

The party stopped in this city Friday noon before visiting the up-country cities but did not leave the train and no inspection of the local station was made. The special train with the president's car attached was sidetracked near the depot while luncheon was served and in less than an hour was on its way north.

and the machine was destroyed by fire. Two men of the party remained on the scene while the women were picked up by a passing automobile and taken to the hospital. Miss Halverson suffered a concussion of the brain and was unconscious for several hours, but will recover. The other woman was not badly injured.

The police continued their efforts to learn the identity of the owner of the automobile.

"UNION IS THE LAW OF LIFE"

Disunion is Law of Weakness and Disintegration, Says Cardinal Gibbons at Catholic Convention

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 11.—Cardinal Gibbons delivered an address here last evening before the Convention of Federated Catholic Societies. He spoke in part as follows:

"Union is the law of life, of strength and growth and of development. Disunion is the law of weakness and disintegration. The American republic owes its material and political prosperity to the union and cooperation of the several states. If those states were disunited and exerting their forces in opposite directions like the present republic of Mexico, we would never have attained the prosperity that has marked our career. For four years during the Civil war, we were disunited; and the result was shedding of fraternal blood, with imminent danger of the dissolution of the nation."

"An enlightened and zealous laity is the glory of the Christian church. The most luminous periods of the church's history have been epochs conspicuous for laymen who have vindicated the cause of Christianity by their eloquence and their writings as well as by the sanctity of their lives. The golden age of Christendom gave birth to a long line of learned and intrepid apostles of the gospel. Among them I might mention Justin Martyr, Minutius Felix, Athanasius, Ambrose and Lactantius who is styled the Christian Cicero."

Defenders of Catholic Religion

Catholic religion in the 19th century, I mention Chateaubriand, Montalembert, the Count de Maistre and Frederick Ozanam in France; Gorres, Windhorst, Mallinckrodt in Germany; Donoso Cortes in Spain; St. Kenelm Digby, Allies, William G. Ward and Frederick Lucas in England; the peerless O'Connell in Ireland; Brownson and many other lights in the United States."

"Let us indulge the hope—and this hope I cherish in my breast when I contemplate the scene before me today—that God will raise up in our own country and in our own day a formidable number of champions of Christ, who will be 'a light to the revelation of the Gentiles, and the glory of the people of Israel.'"

"When the laity are united with the bishop and the clergy in the cause of religion and humanity, then there is no such word as fail. We are bound to succeed, for God is with us, and if God is with us who can be against us? If where two or three are gathered together in the name of Christ, He declares that He is with them, surely His influence is paramount and irresistible when the voice of the bishop and clergy is reached by the multitude of earnest workers assembled before me today."

"Then indeed we form a triple cord which cannot be broken. We establish a triple alliance far more formidable and enduring than the triple alliance of earthly potentates, for theirs is an alliance only of flesh and blood, but ours is a confederation cemented

by the divine virtues of faith, hope and charity."

"And why, my brethren, should you not co-operate with us? Are we not all, clergy and laity, children of the same heavenly father? Are we not all brothers and sisters of the same Jesus Christ? Has He not died for you as well as for me? Has He not as much care of you as He has for me? Are we not all sanctified by the same spirit? There are diversities of graces, says the apostle, but the same spirit. There are diversities of ministries, but the same Lord. There are diversities of operations, but the same God who worketh all in all."

Same Bark of Peter

"We are all in the same bark of Peter, tossed about by the same storms and sharing the same sunshine. Your interests are our interests. We are all steering our course toward the same eternal shores. We are all heirs prospective of the same heavenly kingdom. There is not one reward for the priest and another for the laity. There is not one kind of crown for the pope and another for the peasant. The diara of the pope and the bishop's mitre will not shine more brightly than the widow's hood in the kingdom of heaven unless they are adorned with the jewels of righteousness."

"The Apostle St. Paul pays the following beautiful tribute to the Christians of Thessalonica: 'You became followers of us and of the Lord, receiving the word in much tribulation with joy of the holy ghost, so that you have made a pattern to all who believe in Macedonia and Achaia, and in every place your faith which is toward God is made manifest.'"

"May we not with propriety apply the words of the apostle to our federated societies, whose good works extend throughout the length and breadth of the United States? And if I may single out one society without prejudice to the merits of the others, I will name in a particular manner that splendid organization, the Knights of Columbus. They are the joy of Jerusalem. They are the glory of Jerusalem. They are the joy of Israel, they are the honor of our people. Wherever calamity raises its foul head, they are ever ready, like true knights, to smite the enemy. Whenever an appeal is made in the cause of religion or charity, they are always foremost in lending a helping hand."

Clergy Need Help

"Brethren of the laity, we of the clergy need your help. We learn from the history of the Primitive church what valuable aid the early Christians rendered to the apostles in the propagation of the gospel. And if the apostles with all their piety, zeal and grace, fresh from the inspiring presence of their Master, could not have accomplished what they did without the assistance of the laity, how can we hope to spread the light of truth without your hearty concurrence?"

"How then are you to co-operate with us? In the first place, by the open and manly profession of your faith, by being always ready to satisfy every one that assests you a reason for that hope which is in you. While you will accord to those who differ from you the right of expressing their religious opinions, you must claim for yourself the same privilege. You will ask for nothing more. You will be content with nothing less. And surely, if there is anything in this world of which you ought to be justly proud, it is this, that you are members of the religion of Christ."

"In the days of Rome's imperial splendor the highest title a man could claim in the empire was that of Roman citizen. When St. Paul was threatened with being scourged he indignantly protested against such an infamous punishment on the ground that he was a Roman citizen."

"The Roman was proud of being a citizen because it was venerable in years, because of the vast extent of its territory, because of the wisdom of its statesmen and of the valor of its soldiers."

"If the Roman was proud of being a citizen of Rome, how much should you glory in being a citizen of the republic of the church. Do you seek for antiquity of origin? Nearly 2000 years have rolled over her head, and she is today fresh and vigorous as when she issued from the Cenacle of Jerusalem. Time writes no wrinkles on her heavenly brow."

"Do you seek for wide expanse of territory? Her spiritual dominion extends over the surface of the globe. And when we all find a wisdom comparable to that of Solomon, a wisdom which is born not of man but of God? Where will you find a heroism so sublime as that of her martyrs? There is a heroism not aroused by the sound of martial music or by the clash of arms on the battlefield, or by a lust for fame or by the emulation of comrades, but by a heroism inspired by a love for God and their fellow-beings."

"Above all, you can co-operate with us by the rectitude of your private lives and the influence of your good example. Having your conversation good among the Gentiles, that whereas they speak of you as evil-doers, considering you by your good example they may glorify God in the day of visitation. Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your father who is in heaven."

3 ALARM FIRE AT REVERE

Destroyed a Three Story Dwelling

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—A three alarm fire of a supposedly incendiary origin last night destroyed a three-story dwelling on the Phillips estate, Aldrich avenue, Revere.

Sparks from the blaze set fire to several other houses in the vicinity and before the all-out was sounded the entire Revere department and several pieces of apparatus from Winthrop and Chelsea were put into action.

The destroyed building was situated on a hill near the Woodlawn-Revere line. The blaze, fanned by a high wind, lit up the sky for miles around and hundreds of persons, recalling the Chelsea conflagration of a few years ago, rushed to the spot.

For nearly three years the building, which was one of the oldest in that vicinity, had been unoccupied. Several attempts already had been made to set fire to it, and last night's blaze is believed by the Revere police to be of an incendiary nature.

The fire was first seen by Patrolman Thomas O'Hara of the Revere police at 10:30 last night. A high wind had sprung up, and the blaze was gaining headway before he turned in the first alarm. Before the first call apparatus had put in its appearance, the progress of the blaze was such that O'Hara sounded a second and then a third alarm, and Winthrop and Chelsea apparatus were detailed to protect the town and assist in fighting the fire.

Because of its location on the El-dridge avenue hill and the distance separating it from the nearest buildings at the foot of the hill, none thought other buildings would be endangered. The brisk wind, however, caught up big sparks, driving them nearly 400 yards to the houses at the foot of the hill. Five of the latter caught fire simultaneously and various pieces of the apparatus were quickly dispatched to put out the additional flames.

As they were performing this work other buildings were threatened with destruction and the vicinity of the Phillips estate was in a turmoil. Scores of persons residing there made preparations for hasty departures should the flames continue to spread.

FOUL PLAY SUSPECTED

Police Believe Maine Man Was Murdered

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 11.—Foul play is suspected in the death of John J. McDonald, 24, whose body was found beside the Boston Maine railroad track west of Scarborough crossing yesterday. There were several bruises on the head and a small hole through the skull back of the right ear.

Coroner H. W. Rich expressed the belief that this hole could only have been made by some sharp instrument. McDonald had been visiting his brother in Boston and it is believed he left that city Saturday night.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Oliver Sweeney Was Asphyxiated by Gas—He Is Now at St. John's Hospital and Will Recover

Oliver Sweeney, a middle aged man, was found unconscious in his room, 134 South street last evening about 9 o'clock. The man had been overcome by gas, and he was removed to St. John's hospital in the ambulance.

Whether Sweeney attempted to end his life or whether the affair was an accident is not known. Last evening a strong odor of gas was detected in the house and an investigation resulted in the discovery of Sweeney lying unconscious in his room with the gas turned on. Patrolmen Clark and Considine were notified and after working over the man for some time succeeded in bringing him back to consciousness. At the hospital this morning it was stated Sweeney was all right and would be discharged in a day or two.

WILSON WILL AID WALSH NEGATIVE CHRISTIANITY

To Speak in Boston During Campaign at Union Service

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—Dudley Field Malone, assistant secretary of state, left this city for Washington last night after a visit of several days, during which time he interviewed many of the democratic leaders on the situation in this state.

Mr. Malone will report to the president on the political conditions existing in Massachusetts. In fact, his visit to this state was made under instructions from President Wilson.

The president is keenly interested in democratic success in Massachusetts this fall. He regards the election as the first test of the strength of the administration with the new tariff bill as the principal issue in the campaign.

Mr. Malone received a number of suggestions on federal appointments, particularly on the collectorship of Boston. He was also interested to get the opinions of the leaders on the collector of internal revenue, chief appraiser and surveyor of the port of Boston.

A number of names were talked of for the collectorship, among them Colonel William A. Gaston, James J. Storrow, John Burnett, ex-senator William Taylor, Richard Olney, 2d, and Charles D. Warren. Mr. Malone said, however, that he had no slate for the four appointments now pending.

Mr. Malone said that the president would lend all the aid possible in the election of Lieutenant Governor Walsh. He stated that it was not improbable that Mr. Wilson would make one big speech in Boston during the campaign. During this stay at the Algonquin club Mr. Malone went over the situation thoroughly with Mr. Walsh.

He offered to take the stump for Mr. Walsh during the last 10 days of the campaign in this state, and promised that a number of leaders of national importance would be sent to Massachusetts to aid in the fight to elect the democratic candidate and to defend the tariff bill.

"No efforts will be spared to elect Mr. Walsh and the democratic state ticket, so far as the administration is concerned," said Mr. Malone. "I find that the party is united in support of the lieutenant-governor, and I am much pleased with the prospect of democratic victory here this fall."

AUTOS CRASH ON CURVE

Occupants Thrown Out—None Seriously Injured

NEWHARTFORD, Aug. 11.—Half a dozen people had a narrow escape from death when two automobiles, going at full speed, crashed together at the dangerous corner of High and Winter streets here yesterday afternoon.

The number of the first car is assigned in the register to J. H. Emery of Hartford, Me. The other car was owned and driven by Walter M. Ray, 25 Wachuset street, Hyde Park.

The two cars came together with terrific force, tearing the wheels from the Ray car and almost demolishing it. Several people were thrown about and severely shaken up, but all escaped serious injury.

An Innovation

Two fast elevators always running and the other up-to-date features of the new Sun building are an innovation for Lowell and the patrons of the building.

Rev. Dr. Ward's Subject

at Union Service

In a rather unique sermon preached at a union Congregational service, held in the Kirk Street church, Sunday morning, Rev. George M. Ward, D. D., said that Christ was the saviour, not because he paid his taxes or was a law abiding citizen, but because of his devotion, his passion for the saving of souls.

"Is the mainspring of your life the burning desire to win souls? We measure our love by its quality, rather than by its quantity. Mere keeping of the commandments is nothing; selling all you have and giving to charity is philanthropy. Every man's cross is something he is not going to lay down to win heaven. And that kind is the nearest to goodness we are going to get in this world."

Worthing Street Baptist

At the Worthing Street Baptist church, Sunday morning, Rev. C. B. Davis preached on "How May I Discover Truth." It was a union service of the Worthing Street Baptists and Methodists and a large congregation was present. Mr. Davis' sermon was a plea for the study of the Bible.

First Baptist Church

At the First Baptist church, Sunday morning, Rev. Gur C. Lamson of Philadelphia preached morning and evening and conducted the lesson at the summer Sunday school.

VICTIMS OF THE WATER

Four Drowned Near Boston

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—Four persons lost their lives by drowning in waters near Boston yesterday. Several others had narrow escapes while trying to save the victims, and there were some thrilling rescues, notably at a street bath, where thousands saw an unconscious bather saved by a Roxbury man during the temporary absence of the guard.

Wakefield, Braintree, New Bedford and Boston harbor were the scenes of the four fatalities, which in nearly every case were marked by exciting incidents. This, added to the seven drowned in East Freeport Saturday, makes a total of 11 in 48 hours.

The victims were:

Walter Herberg, 20, of the Waverly Hospital, drowned from cause in Lake Quannapowitt, Wakefield.

George Gray, Jr., 17, of South Quincy, drowned in Quincy reservoir, Braintree.

Frank Dabul, of New Bedford, drowned in Wamsutta Pond.

Edward Dunphy, 28, Houghton square, Lynn, drowned from motor boat off Nix's Mate.

WILL BE 94 YEARS OLD TOMORROW

Mr. Perkins Bids Fair to Make the Century Run

Major Gilbert Perkins will observe the 94th anniversary of his birth at his well appointed home in Liberty street tomorrow. The observance will be quiet and informal as has been his custom for years.

Mr. Perkins is six feet in height and weighs about 145 pounds. He has varied but little in weight, he says, in the last 10 years. He enjoys fairly good health for a man of his advanced years. His stomach, he says, is weaker than it was years ago. He uses but very little tea or coffee, and his dinner about noon, he says, is his best meal of the day. He eats meat at noon and has strengthening broths and soups.

Mr. Perkins is fond of driving and if the weather is favorable he drives in and about the city every afternoon. He learned horseback riding when in Canada and was frequently the leader in processions here. He is the owner of a farm in Canada which is handled by his brother, seven years younger than himself. Mr. Perkins was always fond of agricultural pursuits and was a trustee of the Middlesex North Agricultural society for years.

Through the daily newspapers he keeps in touch with all the important events of the day. In his younger days he was a member of a number of Lowell organizations and was a constant attendant at their meetings.

Mr. Perkins was never easily discouraged and he advised young men to have pluck and perseverance. He comes of a long-lived race, but there was not much money in his native place or where his parents made their home later in Vermont and he determined to seek work elsewhere.

His sister had been in Lowell and she told him of the advantages here for a young man. When a Vermont drover sought a boy to go with him to the Brighton market young Perkins was engaged to accompany him. When they reached a town 30 miles from where they started the drover sold his cattle to another drover.

This made it necessary for young Perkins to seek another position or use the small amount of money he saved to get home. He found a position with a pedlar going to Massachusetts and they rode and walked to Lowell.

Fourteen hours a day was the rule in the Lowell mills when Mr. Perkins was engaged at 75 cents a day. When he worked all the week and paid all his bills he had $1 left. The position of overseer attracted him, as that official was getting $3 a day. To obtain it Mr. Perkins said it was necessary to have a better education than he possessed. He says he went to evening school here for two years, paying for it out of his savings.

In the meantime he was advanced to second hand at $1.25 a day and later

was made overseer of weaving for the Tremont company. When two of the mills of that company were torn down to give way to another large mill, Mr. Perkins secured a position as a traveling salesman in Virginia and Maryland among the soldiers. He was so successful that his Boston employer agreed to keep him as long as he wished to remain.

Mr. Perkins, however, returned to Lowell and was made overseer of weaving in the new large mill of the Tremont company. He remained there until T. S. Shaw became agent. Mr. Perkins while employed by the Tremont company was offered a position as agent of a cotton mill at Hooksett, N. H., but declined.

After giving up his position as overseer of weaving Mr. Perkins resumed work as a traveling salesman and traveled all over the United States.

In politics Mr. Perkins has been a republican in national and state affairs but an independent for many years in municipal elections. He served in the common council in 1891 and 1892. He has always been well informed and was a good debater in his younger days.

Mr. Perkins says in his younger days in Vermont, he was a good wrestler and seldom met an athlete who could throw him. Young men in Vermont he said before the days of the railways were not much discouraged when told, if they did not have much money, they must walk most of the way if they wanted to get to the manufacturing centers of Massachusetts or to Boston.

His father was a colonel in the Vermont militia. His own liking, he says, for horseback riding was acquired while he served as a member of a cavalry company in his early days.

Mr. Perkins was born in Pottou, Que., Aug. 12, 1819, of American parents. His hearing is excellent and his memory of events is remarkable. Haps of friends will congratulate him on his birthday anniversary.

SEVEN DROWNED AT LONG POND

Motor Boat, Overloaded, Sank at Lakeville Resort

Bodies Were Recovered Within a Radius of 15 Ft.—Laid Out in Row

LAKEVILLE, Aug. 11.—When the bodies of the seven victims of Saturday night's power boat accident on Long Pond were recovered by police grappling from early yesterday morning, clinging to the arms of George Wright of Brockton, the only man to lose his life, were found two women, their desperate clutch unloosened even in death. Close by, their arms locked about each other, were two girls. All the bodies were recovered within a radius of 15 feet.

The drowned:

MRS. EDITH E. HAYEN, aged 21, 61 Copeland street, Brockton.

GEORGE E. WRIGHT, aged 22, 1233 Main street, Brockton.

MRS. EMMA ROYLE, aged 28, 156 Washington street, New Bedford.

MRS. MABEL BROWN, 327 County street, New Bedford.

MRS. ANNIE EWEENEY, aged 15, Grinnell street, New Bedford.

MRS. SADIE MCALL, 131 Bonney street, New Bedford.

MRS. ATTIE HAMILTON, aged 32, 251 Winthrop street, Taunton.

The rescued:

MRS. HENRY RAYMOND, aged 40, 163 Bonney street, New Bedford.

R. JAMES STEPHENS, 53 Oak street, Taunton.

LUTHER M. PAYTON, 2D, aged 31, 22 Hay street, New Bedford.

The 15-foot power boat in which the party of 10 were proceeding from Second Island to Lakeside Park was towed ashore today, bailed out and found to be apparently in a good condition.

From the stories told by the three survivors Saturday night it was believed that the bottom had dropped out. An examination yesterday showed only a slight leak around the stuffing box such as is common in boats of her type.

Bodies Laid Out in a Row

Albert Joan of Brockton, owner of the craft, was in charge of the work of raising it yesterday, assisted by Frederick B. Macy of New Bedford and George Macy. A number of other power boats, skiffs and canoes filled with summer residents hovered about the scene of the tragedy.

The bodies on being recovered were placed side by side on the shore near the Macy cottage. Later they were taken in charge of New Bedford, Taunton and Middleboro undertakers and prepared for burial.

Long Pond was a sad place yesterday. The victims in the greatest water tragedy the lakes ever knew were personal and intimate friends of many who gathered on the banks. Even hours afterward these friends were stunned and seemed hardly to comprehend what had taken place.

RACE FOR CUP AROUND CAPE

By Old Time Schooners of New York Yacht Club's Fleet Started

Weather Very Clear and Yachts Made Very Fast Time

VINEYARD HAVEN, Aug. 11.—The race for the Tod cup around Cape Cod by the old-time schooners of the New York Yacht club's fleet, was started an hour after sunrise today under strong conditions.

Last night's thunder showers and rain were followed by a clear north-west breeze that whipped Nantucket sound into white foam and was blowing a full 25 knots when the fleet left the harbor. Four schooners came out to the start off East Chop, the Endymion, Sea Fox, Corona and the Katrina. For some reason the Boston schooner Constellation and the New York boat Ariel did not appear when the starting signal was sounded at 6:10.

The yachts did not break out their anchors in the harbor until a few minutes before the start as it was a quick run across the line.

The Endymion was the leader and with all sails set, including her number 2 jib topped she tore by the committee boat at 6:11.5. The flagship Sea Fox was 35 seconds behind, also going very fast, while the Katrina started at 6:12.30 and the Corona at 6:13.30.

As soon as the yachts were away, the regatta committee was transferred from the tug to the steam yacht Corsair, which started after the flying fleet.

The committee had been gone about a half-hour when the Constellation made sail and passed out by East Chop at 6:50, 40 minutes after the starting signal. Shortly after 7 o'clock the Ariel also got under way and passed East Chop at 7:05.

The Constellation was the scratch boat, allowing all other boats from 25 minutes to an hour and 15 minutes for the 85 miles.

Yachts Made Fast Time

The weather was very clear and the yachts made fast time down Nantucket sound, the Endymion passing Hedge Fence Lightship at 6:40 and reaching Cross Rip Lightship a few minutes after 7 o'clock. The wind was from the northwest and it looked as if the yachts would have it barely free until after passing Pollock Rip Lightship.

The rest of the fleet, including the 50-footers, left about the same time as the racers and by 5 o'clock the squad was well on its way to Provincetown. All of the 50-footers made the run under tow.

Many races around Cape Cod have been fraught with adventure and nearly all of them have developed some historic incident. The New York Yacht club fleet has ventured around the sandy peninsula half a dozen times in the last quarter of a century, while the Eastern Yacht club has held four such events within the past seven years, three of them for the cup offered by Commodore F. Lewis Clark, won last June by the schooner Elena.

One of the longest races around the cape was in 1897, when the New York fleet ran from this port to Bar Harbor, a distance of 225 miles, in about 32 hours. The feature of this race was the wonderful 115-mile run down the wind from Pollock Rip to Bar Harbor, during which all the yachts carried spinnakers for more than 20 hours. The around-the-cape record is held by the Constellation both to Provincetown and Marblehead. The grand old Burgess schooner covered the former distance of 105 miles in ten hours and 25 minutes in 1901 and the latter course of 85 miles in 8 hours and 25 minutes in 1902.

The New York Yacht club fleet was badly scattered three years ago in rounding the cape for a northeaster, which was laying in wait behind Monomoy Point, pounced on the yachts so fiercely that it was two days before the fleet reunited.

100 Wrecks Took Place

With a southwest breeze the run over Nantucket shoals and down the back side of the cape is usually very enjoyable despite the fact that nearly every mile of the course from East Chop Light to Wood End at Provincetown has been the scene of some marine disaster. The fleet is warned to keep well off the Peaked Hill bars on the knuckle of the cape, where nearly 100 wrecks have taken place within the past century and where the greater part of the wreckage from the steamer Portland came ashore in 1858. Under southerly conditions the race is a broad reach of 25 miles to Pollock Rip the starboard tack, a run of 30 miles before the wind to Hedges land light, and a reach of 15 miles on the port tack with gradually shortening sheets to Race Point and a five-mile beat along the outer Provincetown shore to the finish off Wood End.

RACERS MADE QUICK RUN FROM VINEYARD HAVEN TO NANTUCKET SHOALS

CHATHAM, Aug. 11.—The Tod cup racers made a quick run from Vineyard Haven to Nantucket shoals, the Endymion covering the 25 miles from East Chop to the Handkerchief Lightship in a trifle under two hours. The wind increased to nearly 25 miles an hour after the yachts ran down Nantucket sound and light sails were taken in and fore topsails hoisted. The yachts turned the Handkerchief shoal lightship as follows:

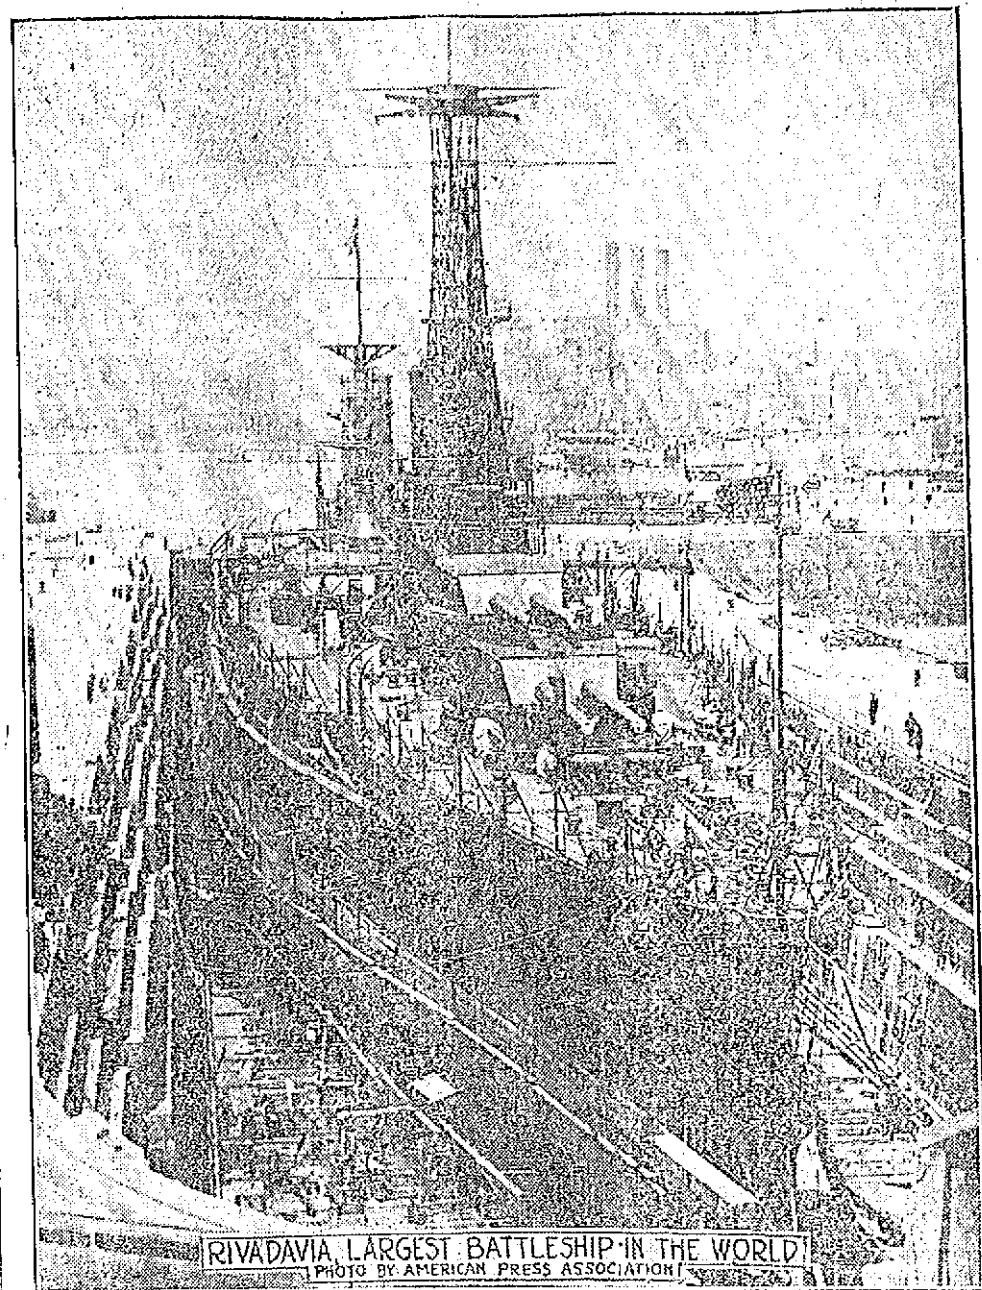

Endymion, 8:05; Corona, 8:10; Sea Fox, 8:12; Katrina, 8:25.

It was a close fetch in the Shoalwater lightship and the yachts not a broadside so that the speed was somewhat decreased. The yachts turned the Shoalwater lightship in this order:

Endymion, 8:45; Corona, 8:47; Sea Fox, 8:49; Katrina, 9:03.

RIVADAVIA, BIGGEST BATTLESHIP IN WORLD, IN DRY DOCK, NOW READY FOR FINAL TEST

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—After the great new Rivadavia, the biggest battleship in the world, built by American shipbuilders for the Argentine Republic, had been scraped and painted at the Brooklyn navy yard dry dock she was ready to depart for her final trial speed tests off Rockland, Me., over the government course. The Rivadavia was modeled after the Arkansas and Wyoming, but is 1,500 tons larger than either of them. The displacement of the Rivadavia is 27,500 tons, and she has twelve 12-inch guns, all of which can be fired at one broadside. The dimensions of the Dreadnought are: Length, 517.5 feet; width, 96 feet.

GANG ROBBED $100,000 WORTH OF GOODS

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 11.—It became known today that a large force of special and state officers were put to work last night along the Chesapeake and Ohio and Norfolk and Western railroads in West Virginia to capture, if possible, a band of thieves who last week robbed cars of merchandise worth approximately $100,000. Charleston and Bluefield are believed to be the principal headquarters of the gang, although their operations have covered many other towns.

Joe Burns has everything in his favor when he climbs on to the Detroit bench—Burns has the build that dominates the eye of a big league manager. He is tall, rangy, handles himself easily and can run like a scared antelope. It would not surprise anyone to see the Portland center-fielder stick when he lands with Jennings.

Gardner showed Harvard football followers that his broken arm was in first class shape when he pulled his host home a winner Saturday in the Intermediate Sculling Championships. Gardner suffered a broken arm during last season and it was feared that he could not be used this fall on the Crimson eleven.

The pace is beginning to tell on McGraw's Giants and the Phillies are doing a comeback stunt not often seen in baseball. However, the consensus of opinion is still in the New York manager's favor.

Another baseball trade is rumored now that the talk has died down about the Tris Speaker-Ty Cobb deal. The last gossip is that Speaker will go to Washington at the end of the season and that McBride and Miller will join the Red Sox. McBride it is said will supersede Bill Carrigan as manager. This tale, on the face of it, looks foolish, but who can tell after the release of Jake Siph?

Ray Keating showed in his home town yesterday when the New York Highlanders played an exhibition game with the Bridgeport team of the Eastern Association. Keating allowed the home club but one run in the six innings he worked. New York won out by a 2 to 2 score.

Here's a man who isn't afraid to stand up for a principle. Harper, a southpaw pitcher who has just joined the Senators from Hackensack, N. J. refused to pitch a game on Sunday when Manager Griffiths sent him into the box. Harper told Griffiths that he had promised his old mother that he would not play ball on Sunday and would not break that promise even to save himself from release. The Washington manager told the boy that he was looking for such men as he who were not afraid to stand up and state an opinion. There is no fear of this youngster having a "streak."

Granger, the colored Dartmouth runner, added the finishing touches to Mel Sheppard's descent from championship form when he beat the former Olympic star in 2:13 over the 1/2 mile route. Sheppard is all in and had better quit.

Chicago fans are now wondering whether or not Jake Stahl would accept the leadership of the White Sox should it be offered to him. The ex-manager of the Red Sox has said that he would never enter professional baseball in any capacity again, but Jake will find the game's temptations stronger than he reckons for Jimmy Callahan, to say the least, is unpopular in Chicago.

Five weeks more of the New England league season. The fans will see some great old battles at Spaulding Park before the 13th of September arrives. Lowell winds up the season here playing five games in Lowell the last week of the race.

New Bedford again tomorrow and dear old Jesse Burkett here on Wednesday. Jesse is not quite as confident as he was after taking four games out of Worcester's last series with Lowell.

DOPE ON THE FOUR LEADERS

Teams are Now Entering the Home Stretch—5 More Weeks of New England League Ball

With only five weeks remaining to be played in the New England league, the race between Worcester, Lawrence, Lowell and Portland is as close as fiction could have it. Every one of these four clubs has practically as good a chance of pulling down the flag as the other three. All four managers claim the league trophy, but time alone will decide this year's pennant winner for the dops of all the wisecracks who follow New England league ball has been sadly upset this season. Let's take a glance over the resources of each team.

Worcester in Lead
Worcester today stands at the top of the ladder. Content to lag behind during the first part of the season, Burkett is now straining every nerve to keep his team in the van. It looks from the gallery as though the team was a trifle stale, although not as badly off in this respect as Lawrence. Manager Pieper has been plugging his men along with merciless persistence for the past month and his team would never have stayed in the lead as long as did if it were not for the fact that Pieper set a grueling pace from the start of the season.

Lowell and Portland Fresher
Lowell and Portland are fresher than their two rivals. There is one weak spot in each team or rather one position which is filled by a third player. Both Daly and Hayden have caught the major portion of their respective teams' contests and both are playing much inferior ball than they are capable of. Daly has had less rest than Hayden and whether he can stand the strain which will be heaped upon him for the next five weeks is an open question.

Duffy Making Good
Hugh Duffy is practically the whole Lowell team. Composed almost entirely of the old Fall River team, which never had a look-in for better than seventh place, Duffy has rounded out a baseball machine out of a mediocre club. Bowerick at second, Burns in the outfield, and Hayden behind the bat are the only three men who are really ball players. Hickman at short is a good hitter and can dig up hard chances, but his work is erratic and not to be depended upon. If the Maine club wins the pennant Portland should not be awarded the flag for it will rightly belong to Hugh Duffy.

Burkett a Wise One
Worcester also possesses a team similar in some respects to Portland. Burkett, as a baseball organizer, can't be beaten. His manipulation of a ball club is well nigh perfect. Carroll behind the bat is a good man, although his lack of height is a great drawback. Ross at third can hit, but knows nothing about the hot corner. He is a big, unfinished slugger. Walsh, in centerfield, is Burkett's best outfielder. He can run, field and hit the ball. His club, outside of these men are only ordinary ball players. Van Dyke and Bushelman are both very good twirlers when in form. Duffy, by the way, hasn't a heavier with possibilities.

Lawrence Slipping
Lawrence seems to have very nearly played herself off her feet but may yet fool us in the outfield. Egan, O'Connell and Lyster are all sluggers that are feared and respected by every pitcher in the circuit. Any one of this trio is liable to break up a game with men on bases. Carlstrom at first is a good man. Since his sale to the Red Sox, however, he has not been playing the brand of ball he exhibited the earlier part of the season. Mahoney, Phoenix and Cooney are only average players, while Reay, meler, Pieper's first string catcher, can't hit a peach basket, although a valuable man in his position. The Lawrence pitchers are not going as well by 50 per cent. as they did the first of the season.

Lowell Still Looks Good
From the individual dope Lowell has the best team of the four. To begin with, Daly, if he keeps up, is the best catcher in the league. He has a lot to learn about baseball, but stands way above the other backstops even if he is green. Halstein is the superior of any man in the league on the first sack and is the most reliable in the league when he swings his club in a pinch. Miller at second covers a lot of ground, throws well and is a handy man with the club. Lowell's greatest weakness is at third base. While Dee is a good fielder he loses his head in a fielding pinch and has thrown away more than one game by his wildness. Aubrey at shortstop is a great field general, but is not doing very well himself. However, if he doesn't go along too badly he is a valuable man on account of his inside knowledge of baseball. Magee in left field can take his place in either of the big leagues and distinguish himself. He is playing the greatest game of his career this season. Clemens in center is a sure as a ground ball to the outfield. Clemens is batting well over the .300 mark. DeGroff, although not a sure man with the bat, will nevertheless, drive in many runs with his long hits. DeGroff is not a good fielder, but makes many wonderful catches. Henderson, Finneran and Zetter are three sterling twirlers.

Any Club's Pennant
This is the way things stand now with the four leading teams in the race, but as previously stated it is any club's flag. So much depends on luck in baseball that the team with a slight advantage over its opponents cannot always be picked as the winner. However, let's get behind Manager Grady's outfit and give them a boost for that pennant! What do you say, boys?

The Ponies defeated the West Ends in a fast and interesting game Saturday afternoon on the Dixwell grounds by a score of 5 to 3. The game was a hard fought one all the way through by both sides. The features of the game were the batting of Gannon and the fielding of Noonan of the Ponies, while Eagle Donovan, the Holy Cross star, and the Morrison brothers, exponents of the West Ends. The Ponies presented a very neat appearance in their white uniforms.

The score by innings:

Evans Denies Sale of Good
CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—Manager Evans of the Chicago Nationals denies the alleged release of Outfielder Wilbur Good to the Indianapolis team. Evans explained that Good's name was included in a list of ten Cubs on whom waivers had been asked from the other seven teams, not with the immediate intention of disposing of them, but to be in a position to make an advantageous deal if one presented itself. Good was one of the 21 Cubs who left last night for Boston.

GRAND CIRCUIT MEET

Matron Stakes of $10,000 at Detroit

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 11.—The Matron stakes of approximately $10,000 with trotting and pacing divisions, was the feature of the grand circuit meet scheduled to open at the state fair grounds this afternoon. Practically all the best youngsters in training, except Elawah, were among the trotters and the absence of this colt, which has shown remarkable speed, indicated a better contest because of his absence. Only three starters were expected in the pacing division.

Other events on the card were the 215 foot, $1000 and the board of commerce $2500 stake for 215 pacers, hobbles barred. This race named race is the only one of the card to be staged on the "big line" this year.

DIAMOND DAZZLES

Joe Ferrin still continues to do good work with the champions. The lad had got two hits Saturday, one a double, and made two fine catches. Pieper certainly is getting a lot out of the youngster.

Frank Chance, manager of the New York Yankees, is now an actor. He has been engaged by a moving picture company to take the leading part in a scenic entitled "The Peerless Leader," some of the scenes of which will be laid at the Polo grounds, New York. Chance has been rehearsing his role in the studio at Jersey City since Monday.

Tom Keady, the former New England leaguer, is acting as a scout for Connie Mack in the Twin State league. He is watching the work of Fred Osterman, the former Holy Cross player, particularly.

Vice President Barnard of the Cleveland American club declared that there is absolutely no truth in the report that the Chicago, Boston and Cleveland teams are arranging a three-cornered deal which will take Second Baseman Lajoie away from Cleveland to the Red Sox.

Recruits trying to burst into the major leagues have fairly hard times in their try-outs, but they can't compare with a liner in purloining fashion, and get a job for the first time with a minor league club.

LOWELL LOST IN 14 INNINGS

PITCHER FINNERAN

Finneran Pitches Heady Game—Worcester Jumps Into Lead—Locals Drop Into Fourth Place

Burkett, with his Worcester Busters, took one of the hardest fought games from the locals Saturday that Lowell has engaged in this season, 14 innings being necessary to decide the long end of a 2 to 1 score. The final run was scored when Aubrey dropped Miller's throw which would have completed the inning. The fast gathering darkness was partly responsible for the Lowell shortstop's misplay.

Finneran and Bushelman started the contest but the latter gave way to Van Dyke in the 13th when a pinch hitter was injected into the game in his place. The big southpaw only allowed one hit during the remainder of the game. Finneran and Bushelman both pitched great ball.

Carroll, the Worcester backstop, was the batting star of the game. Burkett's dispositive catch batted out three singles and a double in his four trips to the plate.

Aubrey, Cooney, Halstein and Finneran all contributed feature plays which cut off sure runs. The score:

CROPS BADLY DAMAGED

Loss of $100,000 Caused by Cloudburst

COLORADO CITY, Colo., Aug. 11.—Damage estimated at $100,000 was caused by a cloudburst last night, of which this city bore the brunt. Crops were badly damaged, country roads were so badly washed that they will require thousands of dollars to repair, and at least fifty families were rendered homeless by the flood.

Several narrow escapes from death were reported by the police. The storm swept down from the Garden of the Gods in a southeasterly direction. Dozens of homes on Colorado avenue were flooded three to five feet deep and a score or more families sought refuge at higher points.

SULZER'S PREDICAMENT

For a long time movements to place Governor Sulzer of New York state in an unenviable light before the people have been characterized by him as attempts at political blackmail. He almost established this view in the public mind, and for a while it looked as though the attempts to hold him responsible for shady transactions would have the opposite effect from that which he claimed was desired. Now, however, evidence brought out before the Frawley investigating committee of the state of New York seems to surround him with a circle of damaging evidence from which it is next to impossible for him to escape. Admitting that the old conspiracy exists, and that selfishly interested politicians are back of the accusations, the charges of themselves will have to be answered and answered fully before the governor can get back into the estimation of the public. It does not seem likely that he will be able to set the damaging testimony at naught.

The rock on which the political fortunes of Governor Sulzer have in all probability foundered is the old obstacle—campaign expenses. He is accused of using money sent him by admirers for campaign expenses, in private speculation in the stock market; he is said to have failed to account for several checks in his sworn statements of campaign expenses; he is indirectly accused of paying pecuniary debts by political office. If any of these charges are sustained, finally, he is not a fit person for governor of New York or public office of any sort. He even places himself outside the pale of sympathy, for such a flagrant use of the privileges of his position is as sordid as can well be imagined. Not all the water in the Hudson is sufficient to wash away pecuniary greed and dishonor from the hands of the governor.

This example of alleged corruption calls attention for the thousandth time to the insidious danger of the money element in politics. Gradually efforts have been made to prevent such actions as Governor Sulzer is accused of by laws compelling the filing of sworn statements of campaign expenditures, and the names of contributors to the party funds, but the situation in this regard is still far from perfect. Money, of course, must be spent, but it ought to be spent by some centralized committee which is not directly controlled by the candidate for office. If the methods are open, there is no need for secrecy; every item of income and expenditure should be published fully. The individual running for office should not have the handling of the campaign funds. Admiring friends who send checks to these aspirants personally only place grave temptation in their path, especially when, as in the case of Sulzer, the candidate for office is financially embarrassed.

It is a healthy sign of the public mind at present that revelations of political scandals involving the expenditure of money are not passed over lightly. Gradually the people have grown to see that corruption in politics is at the root of practically all other legislative evils and they are calling for redress. Even when the act of corruption does not include a monetary consideration directly to the public calls for strict honesty. More pressing still will be their cry for reform if it is shown, as it is likely to be in the case of Sulzer, that the charges made against a politician involve the lowest form of self-seeking public dishonesty.

ROUND THE WORLD

When, about 50 years ago, Jules Verne wrote the story of Phileas Fogg, who went "round the world in eighty days," a few wise people solemnly predicted that such a feat was not outside the boundaries of possibility. Undoubtedly those who were advanced enough to predict the possible accomplishment of the then supposedly marvelous feat thought of it in the same way as we have laconically predicted airship routes across the Atlantic. And yet there are some people living who then read the clever story of Jules Verne with wonder and admiration and who now read in the daily papers of the earth that a few days ago John Henry Mears had circled the globe in something less than thirty-six days. Can one imagine a better commentary on human progress in the matter of transportation?

One reflecting on this splendid achievement of Mears will discover some interesting avenues of thought. First of all it will convince him that in 40 years the world has progressed so much that though an imaginary circling of the globe in 50 days caused wonder, the reality of 35 or so is received calmly. It is not well to be skeptical about scientific predictions for the future. Then again when the earth can be entirely circled in five weeks, it is not strange that there are men who speak of a future universal brotherhood instead of the narrower lines of the sectional patriotism of the present. Forty years from now men may be ready to believe that the whole earth is their common country and not any little part of it. When they do, there is not liable to be much wrangling over Russian trade treaties or the collection of Panama canal tolls. Perhaps 40 years is too brief for the coming of such an ideal, but it does not seem farther from the ideas of a William Jennings Bryan that the marvelous 45 days' trip of Phileas Fogg from the real 35 days' trip of John Henry Mears.

Incidentally, we must also hope that the trip of Mears will have a Jules Verne chronicle. Somehow or other the more wonderful trip of the real traveler is not nearly so interesting as the imaginary voyage of Mr. Fogg. Fact is stranger than fiction, but it is not half as fascinating. In Mears' trip we miss the herd of 10,000 buffaloes, the wrecked bridge in the Rockies, the kangaroo which he left burning. But even so, it is in touch with earthly things we do not blame him if he goes over to the bars' row in Paris and takes a few pointers from Baron Munchausen. He must now realize that his marvelous predictions were too tame.

FATHERS' DAY

The Hon. James Hamilton Lewis, United States senator from Illinois is very anxious that the fathers of the land should receive their full share of public honor and recognition. He thinks that because we have "Mothers' Day" and "Children's Day" and hosts of other special days, father should be officially remembered. Now, the fathers of the land, while no doubt deeply grateful to Mr. Lewis for his zealous interest in their behalf, would be the first body to protest against the setting aside of any day to do them honor. Most fathers are too modest to wish a place in the limelight and a few of them are too timid. They have long ago been taught in a way that there is no ignoring or mistaking that their place is to "say nothing but say words." At one time it was supposed that "men must work and women must weep," but this view seems to have been grossly exaggerated, in our particular at least. Men must still work indeed and women must—have mothers' days, and bawling womanhood parades and suffragette conventions. It is still true that "there's little to wear and many to keep," but poor father has to keep hustling trying to earn the little and keep the many. He is so busy that he has not much time to spend in agitating fathers' days. We have too many of such days already and if there must be a new one he is not the proper subject for it. Poor man, the worst of the matter is the length that he gets on all sides when somebody proposes a special day to give him honor—and a rest.

MR. LIND'S MISSION

Mr. John Lind, special envoy of President Wilson, is in Mexico City and as yet none of the predicted and half expected things have happened. He may possibly be entirely ignored by the provisional government, but it does not seem probable that he will be sent out as an undesirable alien. The next few days will show whether his mission will be productive of any tangible results or whether it will end in the same vagueness and indecision which have characterized the recent attitude of the United States towards Mexico. In the meantime the manner in which Huerta will receive the American representative will be a pretty fair test of the degree of sincerity which actuates his official actions. He must be aware of the fact that the reports of Ambassador Wilson were not taken seriously by the administration, and if things are as the former ambassador represented, Huerta is right to welcome the closest investigation by a representative whose word will be heeded at Washington. On the other hand, there is an evident temptation for Huerta to make political capital out of the situation, for in view of the strong anti-American feeling among all classes of the Mexican people, he may be able to restore his prestige and unite the warring factions of his people by showing a determined opposition to President Wilson's scheme of mediation. Judging from his past record he may be expected to take a middle course, placating the Mexican populace by a great show of hostility to the American attitude as he thinks safe.

THREE CLASSES OF MEDICINES

There are the Animal, Vegetable and Mineral, of which the Vegetable Kingdom furnishes by far the most and the best. Over 700 varieties of roots, plants and herbs are known by pharmacists to have medicinal value and probably the "Indian Medicine Man" knows of as many more. It was in this most interesting study, more than forty years ago, that Lydia E. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., discovered her now famous "Vegetable Compound for Women's Ills," which has proved of incalculable value to hundreds of thousands of American women. Her wonderful success proves

Seen and Heard

Dear W. Underwood was deprecating a hopeless tariff fight. "When you're bound to lose," said he, "why go in?" Then Mr. Underwood laughed and added: "I don't see the point in throwing down the gauntlet just in order to throw up the sponge."—Washington Post.

Arthur J. Reddington, a Lamanda Park rancher, suffered from partial paralysis of the arms and legs for several years and was considered incurable.

As Reddington was hobbling along the boulevard the other day near his ranch the electric horn of an automobile frightened a flock of geese. One flew across the road and struck Reddington full tilt on the back of the neck.

Reddington instinctively threw up his hands to his neck. When he recovered his composure he found he had also recovered the complete use of all his limbs. What do you know about that?

Alfred Noyes, the English poet, said at the Players' club:

"You American poets are in luck. You editors pay so well here. Why, an industrial American poet ought to be able to afford a motorcycle, or at least a bicycle. But in England it's a different story."

Mr. Noyes, smiling bitterly, then said:

"An English comrade once asked a British writer: 'Who originated that phrase 'A penny for your thoughts'?' Do you know?"

"Of course I know," was the reply. "It was an editor."—New York Times.

Eliza Root was talking about the corporation lawyer.

"He isn't so much abused as he once was," said Senator Root. "A reaction in his favor has set in. In the past a corporation lawyer couldn't attend a public dinner without having some such story as that of Lawrence thrown at him."

Lawrence, Professor Lawrence, taught corporation law in a famous school. He had a reputation for wit. He was always making funny cracks at modern life and society.

"A student, in answer to one of Lawrence's questions, said, grandiloquently: 'A lawyer's first, and sole duty, is to see that, though the heavens fall, justice is done.'"

"That justice is done," repeated Lawrence, thoughtfully. "I'm, yes, exactly. And my experience has been that the lawyer who does justice oftenest is the one who first achieves a white palace in Fifth avenue, overlooking the park."—New York Tribune.

"WISH YOU WERE HERE"

Got a card from Steve this mornin', dog—come his 'lavin' skin. He's up around Nag's Falls a-writin' home again.

Seems like the boy's one glory is to wander far an' free. An' fonder of his gals, I gosh, 'n' more he writes to me.

He sends these 'pleas' postal cards, with photos showin' that 'The world is allus beautifulest where you ain't livin' at.

His messages reads all the same; in letters from Maine or Kankakee an' says: "Wish you was here!"

Nobody ever seems to know just when he'll go or where. We get his destination from the card that says he's there.

An' he ain't more than settled down to loaf. Till he gets thinkin' up the names of everyone he knew.

An' then with ever doggone cent he possibly kin spare he buys the 'linary church, the depot an' the square.

He buys bout everything they is in Bath or Belvidere. Then mails the whole blame business home an' says:

"Wish you was here!" I guess he's at Nag's now; he was last time. I don't prove conclusively he ain't in Terry flote.

He may be down in Panama or snootin' round in Nome. Nobody knows just where he's at—except he ain't at home!

I guess we'll never hear from him for months or maybe years. If some kind soul don't devise these Yes, I expect if Steve would die he'd rise up from his bier.

To get a card to all his friends an' say: "Wish you was here!"

No Word From Man Who Entered Forests

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—Not a word has been heard so far from Artist Knowles of Boston, who just a week entered the woods of the Maine forests without food, without clothing and without the means of any kind or sort in order to test his experiment that a civilized man could live for two months in the forests under these conditions.

No fear, however, is felt regarding the venturesome Bostonian because his wonderful experience as a woodsman will surely stand him in good stead.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Thrills

Lynn News: And possibly all of us need to learn something of sanity in our amusements. Our jaded appetites call for thrills, and new thrills, and we keep adding them even though they come also a large element of danger. Perhaps the reason why Buffalo Bill went into bankruptcy was because he was unable to add any new thrills to his show. The public demands them. And one of these thrills comes to many people through reckless speed, or through exciting how near they can come to injuring themselves or others in an automobile.

The Summer House

Manchester Mirror: Formerly the summer house was really a sort of club, having stable full of horses or motors, shaven heads, carefully tended lawns, and a large element of water. And a little haven of rest from labor, noise, dust and the steamy air of towns. Its walls may consist merely of matched boards nailed over a framework of timbers, but the finish, carpets, rugs or plumbing.

Round the World

Boston Traveler: John Henry Mears, who has broken a new record of 35 days in his ride, is entitled to all the glory that he has received for he has earned all of it. His gain upon the best time previously made by his own hand in crossing the globe is only one day. He made close connections and he had invaluable assistance from railroad, steamship and other officials who could aid him. It is well to remember that the glory even after his record shall have been broken.

Mediation

New Bedford Times: Mediation in Mexico is to be the keynote of President Wilson's policy—mediation of a friendly but aggressive nature. This policy, the president expects, is to have the backing of American interests in Mexico and the approval of the European nations.

If anything can settle the Mexican trouble this policy should succeed. It should bring peace and order where there is nothing but turmoil and chaos.

Not Sured

Fall River Herald: If Mr. Bryan was a person to be relied upon in the election, he would have been less likely to public view long ago. For that reason, his announcement that he is going right on with his lecturing tour is not likely to occasion general surprise.

The Coat Tax

Providence Tribune: At Pennsylvania has placed a new tax on apparel in its great goodness. It has once more prompted the plans of George F. Buer, president of the coat trust, to make other tax a ton out of the pockets of the public.

Women's Clothes

Berthland Express: This rebellion against the great fashion of women's dress is beginning to take on serious proportions. The Minnesota Federation of Women's clubs has issued a circular to pattern makers and manufacturers in an appeal to declare their conviction of the executive board that there should be some different styles for modest gentleness.

It is the only thing in its under-world. We have all along believed that the women themselves would be the first to rebel.

Sing Sing

Brookline Enterprise: The Boston Record notes that the convicts at Sing Sing have tried various schemes, but not the hunger strike. The authorities in some prisons make the hunger strike unprofitable by providing for the hunger of the prisoners much of the time so that they don't care for any more.

To Our Credit

Salem News: Americans are often accused of being the pass who carve or write their initials or names wherever they get a chance. Therefore, to know that they are not the only ones, and that, sometimes, at least, they have respect for the place. A visitor of the Southern Association of College Women, sums up the advancement that has taken place in higher education in the south since 1900, in a report distributed by the United States bureau of education.

Not only in entrance requirements, but also in libraries, laboratories, buildings, and equipments of all kinds, as well as in the extremely important matter of training and ability of the faculty, Miss Coulton notes marked improvement. She attributes the advance chiefly to two agencies, the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching and the General Education Board.

The former did its most valuable work through publications which revealed the wide variation in college standards that prevailed in the south, while the latter has been especially helpful through the founding of professorships of secondary education to aid the high schools in their relation to the colleges.

Together with the betterment in entrance requirements has come a decided increase in the amount of college work reported by the degree.

In 1904, according to Miss Coulton, the A. B. of only two southern colleges represented four full years of college work, while by 1914 graduates of at least 25 colleges will have completed four years of standard college work.

Although emphasis in her declaration that great improvement has taken place, Miss Coulton declares that much still remains to be done. "Each of the 367 institutions in the south bearing the name college or university," she says, "firmly believes that it is predestined to become the leading institution for higher education in its community. Nevertheless, with all the education boards, foundations, associations, commissions and conferences working directly or indirectly in the development of its efficiency, there remains the hope that many shall come to be induced to stop confederate degrees and become good preparatory or industrial schools; that others may die from lack of patronage; and that the righteous remnant may thus be encouraged to continue to strive after ever enlarging ideals of standard and of service."

MAN CRUSHED TO DEATH

Killed Beneath Auto

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 11.—Gen. L. Ayer, 61 years of age, and a well known citizen of this city, was instantly killed about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon when an automobile in which he was riding turned turtle, falling upon him and crushing him to death.

Ayer was riding with Clarence D. Palmer, owner of the car and driving it at the time. The machine was on the Hooksett road, headed for Concord. A motorcycle and a bicycle coming south suddenly appeared ahead.

To avoid them, Palmer applied the emergency brake. The road was slippery from a recent shower. The automobile skidded and turned turtle and crashed down upon Ayer. Palmer escaped with a few bad bruises.

Ayer was employed as electrician in the Amoskanc mills. Palmer is of the firm of Palmer & Garmon, granite workers. Both are residents of Manchester.

SIGN BALKAN TREATY

Peace Established in Southeastern Europe

BUCHAREST, Roumania, Aug. 11.—

The peace treaty between the Balkan states was signed at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning. In honor of the occasion the city was decorated with flags, guns were fired, bells were rung and the bands played.

A solemn Te Deum in the cathedral at noon was attended by King Charles, Queen Elizabeth, (Carmen Sylva) and the members of the royal family and the delegates to the peace conference.

King Charles conferred high decorations on all the delegates except the Bulgarians, who declined to receive them.

The peace treaty provides that the Roumanian army shall evacuate Bulgarian territory in 15 days after its signature and the Serbian and Greek armies in three days. It also provides for arbitration by Belgium, Holland or Switzerland in the event of a disagreement over the delimitation of the new frontier.

Bulgaria engages in the treaty to begin demobilization immediately.

BURGLARS HAVE A FEED

Rob Store Twice in One Night—Eat and Smoke

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—Early yesterday morning a Winthrop policeman noticed a window broken in the periodical and light lunch establishment of Hamme Toimann. An investigation, it appeared as if the burglar had forced his way in and after helping themselves freely, had departed. But the place looked so easy they had returned, gaining entrance through a rear window, which would give them access to a part of the store they could not reach from the front.

At any rate, they partook liberally of all the good things around in the eating and drinking line, and having obtained full stomachs, they topped off with a box of the firm's best 15-cent straight cigars. When they departed for good they took a couple of unbroken boxes of cigars along for future reference. It is thought they were in the store nearly all night.

A valet tender later saw them in company with the cigars, head a train for Boston. The total loss to the store is about $20.

DIDN'T WANT TO DIE

For a Red Jumped Nimbly to His Feet When Shooting Was Suggested

The other night in the vicinity of the post office a horse laid down to rest on the cobblestones in Appleton street and the usual crowd, loaded with the usual bundle of suggestions, gathered to see what was going to happen and to dispense of said suggestions.

The horse was not very rich in flesh and to the poor hostler, who was trying his level best to arouse his slumbering nag, a boy said: "Why don't you put a blanket on your horse?" "I've two blankets on my horse," replied the boy, "but he's not warm. Now what d'ye suppose he'd put a blanket on him for?"

"Why, I keep de stars from burnin' up th' hay inside on him," said the boy, "but he's not warm. Now what d'ye suppose he'd put a blanket on him for?"

The horse turned a deaf ear to these unkind remarks, but that he understood what was being said was proven when his death by shooting was suggested.

After the hostler and the crowd had failed in their attempts to have the horse move, even as much as an ear, Agent Richardson of the Humane society was sent for.

Agent Richardson allowed that the animal was all right and suggested setting a large piece of sail cloth and some blankets and pulling the animal over onto them. This was accomplished, and the dead weight of the horse's body was dragged behind the post-office out of the way.

"Now," said Agent Richardson, "send for the owner."

A telephone call soon brought the proprietor of the animal, whom Agent Richardson explained the situation.

"Well," said the man who claimed the horse, "there's only one thing to do. If he doesn't get up in 10 minutes, shoot him."

At this the mouth of the horse opened, and after stretching out its neck in the vain attempt to nibble a few nearby blades of grass, the animal leaped nimbly to its feet.

FOUR HURLED FROM AUTO

Tire Burst and the Car

Crashed Into Tree

WALPOLE, Aug. 11.—Joshua R.

Ray of 323 Forest street, Malden, his wife and daughter, Beulah, and H. A. Whitaker of 44 Chicawab street, Dorchester, narrowly escaped being seriously injured yesterday afternoon when a new tire on the auto in which they were riding burst, hurling the machine against a tree and throwing all four of them out into the roadway.

The crash wrecked the automobile and the two men and two women lay stunned in the street until another automobile party which was following closely behind sped up to the scene of the accident. Mrs. Ray and her daughter were quickly restored, but Ray and Whitaker were found to be suffering from injuries which needed the attention of a physician.

They were brought to the office of Dr. Fred Fuller, a mile away. Here it was found that Ray had received a bad shaking up and one rib was broken. Whitaker was bruised about the face and hands, and Mrs. Ray had a long laceration over her left eye. They were taken to their homes a short time later.

Ray is superintendent of the Bourne Rubber company in Providence and was bringing his family, who had spent the week with him, to their home when the accident occurred. Yesterday a new tire was put on the automobile and it was decided to make the trip by automobile instead of by train.

The machine was travelling at a fair rate of speed when suddenly the tire burst with a roar and the automobile swerved from the roadway and plied up against the tree.

Several refreshment and souvenir booths were located on the grounds and all reported a flourishing business. Music was furnished by the Forge Village life and drum corps.

A feature of the afternoon program was a baseball game between the White Sox of Graniteville and the Cubs of North Chelmsford, the former winning by the score of 3 to 2. The other sports and results were as follows:

After the athletic program, an old fashioned supper was served on the grounds and over two hundred people sat down at the tables. In the evening, most of the picnickers journeyed to the dance hall in the vicinity and dancing was enjoyed until 11 o'clock.

The affair was in charge of Rev. Edward G. Mitchell assisted by several committees.

SET FIRE TO BATH HOUSES

The Lawrence Structure
Where 11 Boys Met
Their Death Destroyed

Police Think Parent of
One of the Victims
Set the Fire

LAWRENCE, Aug. 11.—Fire, believed to be incendiary origin, last night destroyed three of the municipal bath houses, at one of which 11 boys were drowned a month ago by the collapse of a runway. The police believe that some of the foreign-born parents, crazed with grief at the loss of their child, fired the three structures in the Merrimack river, causing a loss to the city of upwards of $1500.

After the investigation following the drowning, the bath houses were closed by order of the mayor. The two on the north side of the river, where the tragedy occurred, were torn to the south side and incinerated beside the third.

For a month they have been closed. Simultaneously last night all three burst into flames, and before help could be summoned had burned to the water's edge.

IRREGULARITIES

Investigation in Mississippi's State Institutions Will Be Pressed Vigorously

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 11.—Investigation of irregularities in Mississippi's state institutions, principally the prison system, which already has resulted in the conviction and sentencing of eight men, will be pressed vigorously this week. Governor Brewer, who has headed the investigation and brought charges before grand juries which has resulted in numerous indictments, for graft and embezzlement, is now investigating stories of serious conditions at all the state prison farms.

The investigation and trials heretofore have been confined to Jackson and Brandon, but Governor Brewer and his assistants now are working at the state institutions at Indianola, Lexington, Clarksdale and Raymond.

EXPECT 50,000 KNIGHTS

Delegates Pour Into
Denver, Colorado

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 11.—It is estimated that 18,000 Knights Templar arrived in Denver yesterday and last night to attend the 32nd triennial convocation which was informally opened Saturday night. Seventy-eight special trains bearing 25,000 other knights were scheduled to arrive today.

Each train with its load of Templars was met by an escort from the Colorado commanderies and marched to their hotels. They were soon followed by Creston commandery of Burlington, Ia., and at intervals of a few minutes thereafter small armies of knights poured into the Union station.

Among the most interesting of the early arrivals today were the 200 members of California commandery No. 1, who will form the escort of honor to Grand Master William B. Melish, during the convocation. Awaiting them were 200 back horses that have been trained by an army officer. Californians mounted their steeds, and accompanied by an escort, paraded to a hotel.

PRAYERS ARE ANSWERED

Chicago People Appeal for Rain

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—Prayers for rain in the parched regions of the west were offered yesterday in several Chicago churches. During the services the tattoo of showers on the roof testified to the bounty of nature in northern Illinois.

Many of the ministers discussed experiences of droughts of other years to show the efficacy of prayer, some of them giving authenticated instances where prayers for rain were answered within a few hours.

SECRETARY LANE

Issues Instructions to Expedite Designations of Land Under Enlarged Homestead Law

For the last year or more public lands in the western states have been designated by the secretary of the interior as subject to entry under the so-called enlarged-homestead act, or the 320-acre homestead act, only on petition of those who desire to avail themselves of the provision of this law. This procedure was an outgrowth of the desire of the department to designate no lands which were not actually enterable under the law in question.

In order to accomplish this end the status of each tract had to be investigated to determine whether it was already entered, was a school section, was involved in a state settlement, or for any other reason had been taken out of the class of "unappropriated" public lands which alone are enterable under this act. This search meant that with the meagre force available to the department only slow progress could be made in the designation of lands for entry under this law.

Soon after the passage of the act lands had been designated for entry under it in a body without regard to their status. The only questions determined by the department prior to designation being that the lands were surveyed, unreserved, and nontribal.

Under this mode of procedure, designations can be made with comparative rapidity, the availability of the lands for entry being determined by the applicant when he visits the local land office to file upon his claim. After the abandonment of this early procedure the law was extended to apply to North Dakota. The rule of designation by petition has been followed in that state, and the resulting delays have proved embarrassing both to the department and to the citizens of North Dakota, as well as to those of other western states.

At the suggestion of Senator Gronna, Secretary Lane has recently decided to revert to the earlier practice and designate the lands in large bodies after it is determined that they are non-irrigable, as required by the law. He has accordingly issued appropriate instructions to the geological survey, which is charged under the department with the preparation of the lists of lands enterable under this law. This change will have the effect of greatly expediting the designation of lands under this law.

Another Daring Jewelry Robbery Reported to the Police

Kennebunkport Summer Colony Aroused by
the Robbery

KENNEBUNKPORT, Me., Aug. 11.—A daring jewelry robbery was made at "Crown's," the summer home of Mrs. M. H. Forrest, a wealthy widow of Philadelphia, yesterday. Diamonds valued at over $9000 were obtained by the thieves, who left no clue to their identity.

Coming so close upon the disappearance of jewels valued at approximately $45,000 from Narragansett Pier, the police are of the opinion that a gang of expert crooks are doing business in New England.

The robbery occurred about 2 o'clock yesterday morning and entrance was obtained by forcing a cellar bulkhead. One of the servants was awakened by steps, but as there are numerous guests at the cottage, nothing was thought of the matter at the time.

Entering the room where Mrs. Forrest was sleeping, the intruders ransacked her bureau and dressing table, and also her writing desk without disturbing her. Apparently jewelry that did not contain diamonds was not wanted, as several valuable gold watches and other articles were left behind.

The robbery was not discovered until Mrs. Forrest arose yesterday and the local police are completely baffled. The summer colony and residents are much alarmed, fearing a repetition of the sensational breaks which recently terrorized Narragansett Pier.

Asked if she had any suspicions as to the thieves she replied: "Not the slightest. I suspect no one. The first I knew of the robbery was when I opened my bureau drawer this morning and found the jewel case gone. The thieves did not create the slightest disturbance in my room, and I was not awakened."

A STUBBORN BATTLE

Conserve Home

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Convicted that the title of their organization, the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, was too lengthy and cumbersome to carry into the light against "votes for women," members today announced that they would be known hereafter as "Woman Conservativists." They propose to work to offset the possible effect on congress of the meeting this week of the National Council of Woman Voters and they are looking forward to a stubborn battle.

"We think that putting woman into politics," said the officials of the "conservativists" in a statement issued from their headquarters here today, "and forcing her to do men's work as well as her own, is a terrible waste. We, therefore, stand as a body of conservativists. Our aim is to conserve the home, to conserve motherhood, to conserve womanhood."

Leading suffragists continue to arrive from the states having equal suffrage, to be in attendance at the conference of the National Council of Woman Voters, which begins Wednesday and continues throughout Thursday and Friday. Many women prominent in club work and political life already are here.

AMERICAN CONDEMNED

Jail for Killing Man Who
Assaulted Daughter

SEUL, Korea, Aug. 11.—Mr. Mason, the American manager of the gold mines at En-Sun, in northern Korea, was sentenced today to 15 months' penal servitude on a charge of manslaughter for killing a Chinese mine employee who, in the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Mason, committed a criminal assault on their 12-year-old daughter.

When Mason returned home and learned of the occurrence he went out and killed the Chinese.

In his defense Mr. Mason pleaded the "unwritten law." But was condemned.

An appeal against the sentence was entered at once.

Sixty-five Americans are employed in the En-Sun mine, and are among the most prosperous in Korea. There also are large numbers of Chinese and Japanese miners.

hat than a bonnet, its white crepe facing proclaiming the widow's weeds.
This white crepe facing is becomingly echoed by a collar of white crepe fastened under a brooch of dull jet. Swiv-ing ear-rings of dull jet add to the coquettish suggestion of the bonnet.

Some sort of wrap must be provided for wear with mourning gowns and the most practical wrap is the three-quarter model of heavy, dull silk.
Such a wrap is illustrated. It is made of dull finished faille silk trimmed with bands of crepe, an ornament of crepe effecting the fastening. Scarves of crepe or of dull silk bordered with crepe are also admirable for summer use.

White Mourning for Summer Days

White mourning has become so much the custom now that no one questions its correctness or appropriateness. It is not worn in town except in the house, but has been adopted generally for country wear.
Everything about the costume, however, must be dead, dull white—no luster or gleam is allowed and even the linen frock must be ironed on the wrong side so that there will be no glossiness. Tailored suits may be of dull white serge, white mohair, white pongee, ratine or worsted and mohair mixture—a favorite material in Paris and England for mourning costumes of tailored character. Thin frocks may be of white dimity, dotted swiss batiste with trimmings of pintucking, hemstitching or bands of footings.

The white mourning frock illustrated is made of dull finished India silk trimmed with white crepe and small crocheted buttons. The hat of white chip is trimmed with dull white grain ribbon. Another hat, made entirely of white crepe, accompanies a graceful blouse of white crepe de chine finished at the neck with a collar of white crepe.

The teagown is very properly allowed a saving touch of white and is a bit more frivolous than would be allowable in a formal costume. It is made of black net decorated with collar of white chiffon decorated with black lace bowknots. The cap of black chantilly lace over white silk has a bow of violet ribbon across the front.

allowable. A very graceful house-gown of black tansdowne is pictured and it will be noted how much the long string of dull jet beads adds to this simple costume.

The Question of Crepe

Every woman must decide by personal preference whether or not crepe is to be included in her mourning wardrobe. There is a prejudice against crepe in the minds of some women, though this prejudice is hard to understand, since no trimming gives the dull black mourning costume such richness and elegance as crepe; and in France the coquetry of the youthful mourning costume increases in direct ratio with the amount of crepe employed in its garnishment.

Crepe is worn in this country not only by the widow but by the parent, daughter or sister in bereavement.
The widow wears her crepe veil over the face six months and then it is thrown back. The parent, or daughter may wear the long veil draped in pleated and rather short folds at the back of a small hat for a year, though the face veil of net bordered with crepe is the one more generally used. Two correct and conventional crepe trimmed bonnets for a widow in the second year of mourning are illustrated, yet there is a vast difference in these bonnets. One is the extreme of simplicity—a deeply hemmed crepe veil gracefully draped over the little Marie Stuart coil made of crepe folds—the sort of bonnet worn by Queen Alexandra after the death of her husband, King Edward. The other bonnet is equally correct but infinitely more coquettish. It is, in fact, rather a white silk stockings are offered in the shops at attractively low prices. It is wisest to pay a dollar or over, the pair, at least, for one's white hosiery;

for a sleazy weave in white silk is excessive, and these too-cheap white stockings, needing so much harder rubbing on the washboard than dark colored hose, soon go to pieces.

Slipper just now grows more fanciful each day and just now the buckle is the without-which-nothing-of the slipper. A pump or slipper guillemot of the modish buckle across instep might as well argue itself unknown, as far as fashion considerations go;
and in the street these days, the facthing that catches the eye, in the costume of an advancing lady, is likely to be the flash of her pump buckles.
The Colonial slipper at the left of the illustration is a dainty model in two shades of gray suede, with a curved Spanish heel covered with the darker suede that forms the foxing and Colonial tongue. Under the oval steel buckle is a section of the lighter gray suede used for the back of the slipper. In the same illustration is shown a walking pump of patent leather and white suede, with an oblong buckle of white metal, a moderately high leather heel and welled sole. White stockings will be worn with this white and black pump.

In another illustration are shown two correct types of outing footwear; one a sturdy tramping boot for the fair camper, mountain climber or golf enthusiast, and the other a conventional riding boot with the stiff upper part attached to a foot portion of perfect lines and extreme flexibility so that the foot and ankle may have absolute freedom in the stirrup.
The tramping boot has smart and attractive lines though it is evidently built for rough and ready service as attested by its roomy toe, low broad heel and high top, laced with cowhide thongs. Both of these boots are made of the new washable tan leather which is the joy of the woman cen-sitionally in a hurry.

Lusterless Fabrics and Simplicity of Style
the First Requirement of Mourning Dress—White Mourning for Out of Town
Wear - Lingerie and Negligees.

AFTER the first shock and list-lessness following bereavement, the average woman rouses herself to take a greater or less interest in the providing of suitable raiment for the period of mourning dress which she faces. And often has this imperative necessity of putting the thoughts on the problem of the new mourning garb tided a distracted soul over the first hard weeks and averted bodily or mental illness from brooding over sorrow.

Mourning dress is a convention, and like every other convention of society it has behind it a principle. It protects its wearer from many wounds which might otherwise be inflicted through ignorance or thoughtfulness, and has been found beneficial to society as well as to the individual. But no mode of dress is so hedged around with conventions. There are certain established rules of good form in mourning garb and the woman who is not familiar with these rules is very apt to make mistakes and even to render her costume ridiculous in the eyes of those to whom the mourning conventions are law.

Exaggerated Mourning Should Be Avoided.

The best mourning—speaking from the standpoint of good taste—is extremely simple in style but fashioned of the finest materials. Yards and yards of trailing crepe, heavily bordered handkerchiefs and rattling strings of black beads are left to the nouveau riches, and the woman of breeding and distinction affects simple costumes, perfectly made yet guiltless of frivolous outlines or a conspicuous and ostentatious use of crepe.

This is not saying that mourning must, to be in good taste, be also dreary and elderly. There are many ways of adding charm and even coquetry to the mourning costume—as the French who are adepts at this art, have discovered. Their mourning is an exquisite skillful combination of dignity and subdued coquetry; yet no other mourning is so laden with crepe as that of the French widow, and especially the youthful French widow. As a matter of fact, there are few women to whom mourning is not becoming. The rich, simple black garb lends a refining, spiritual suggestion to the face and makes the
effect, and it is the exceptional woman of whom it is not said, during her period of bereavement "how becoming mourning is to her!"

Well chosen jewelry is an important factor in the lightening of mourning dress. Certain kinds of jewelry are permitted and among these ornaments are pearls. Even with deepest first mourning a string of pearls around the throat is permitted and this simple

touch will often lift a whole costume of heavy black to becomingness and grace. Dull jet beads are also allowable and a lorgnette chain of such beads will lighten the somber effect of a simple mourning bodice considerably.

Gloves and Boots Important Items.

Of course no woman of sane mind would be guilty of wearing tan boots with a mourning costume, but equally heinous in the estimation of convention is the crime of wearing patent leather with mourning garb. The boots should be of dull calf with buttomed tops of the same leather or of black cloth. Black suede boots are perfectly permissible for wear with afternoon or indoor gowns but black satin boots should not be donned. The same rules apply to pumps worn about the house and to slippers for the evening. French heels are not barred, if one is wedded to them, but best taste would suggest the more moderate Cuban heel on the street boot—keeping always in mind the unwritten law: "dignified and unfrivolous effects in street mourning garb." With all-white summer mourning, now much in vogue for out of town wear, white boots of course are worn. These should be of buckskin and in the buttomed style—which is the requirement for all formal and conventional costumes. White buckskin pumps with covered buckles may be worn with plaza frocks. Silk stockings are permissible—perhaps the only article of apparel with a glistening surface that is allowed the wearer of mourning.

Black suede gloves are worn with most exclusive mourning costumes but black glove gloves are permitted—fortunately for the woman who must dress economically for nothing grows shabby more quickly than black suede.
In warm weather black silk gloves may be donned though these are really not absolutely correct with the mourning costume because of the luster of the silk texture. With white mourning, gloves of white suede or doekskin should be worn.

The Requirements of The Street Costume.

No matter how simple the mourning costume is, it should conform to fashionable lines and should be built of good material. With these qualifications it can scarcely fail to be distinguished and becoming. Shabby black is atrocious and it is wisdom to have few costumes and those the best, during the mourning period. One soon discovers, also, how one's costumes doctail each other—so to speak. The black gloves and boots match everything; so do the neck accessories and the handsome sash of dull silk or crepe. The housegown of handsome crepe de chine, if provided with two bodices, one made with a transparent black net yoke and elbow sleeves, will answer for a multitude of occasions. And there is a certain sense of comfort in having to provide only the one hat for a season.

The woman in mourning should have one well cut tailored suit of dull black serge or cheviot for trotabout wear; this to be supplemented with several blouses, one of tucked black crepe de chine, another of black chif-fon and net; a third of thin black

Summer Footwear is Ready for Work and Play

THIS day is past and gone when footwear in conjunction with the summer frock is a negligible quantity. Just as much care and consideration must be given to the selection of boots and slippers for wear with the white and light colored costumes of summer time, as are given to the selection of sashes, para-sols, hats and other details that make up the completely correct and presentable toilette. A pair of black slippers, however dainty and desirable in themselves, may easily spoil utterly the effect of a piazza frock of lingerie material; and the smart black buttomed boot entirely correct with the conventional street costume, can make a white tailor of summery character look awkward and absurd.

Footwear is one of the most conspicuous—if not the most conspicuous item of the costume now and must conform modestly to the character of the frock with which it is worn, or the entire ensemble will be utterly ruined.

The buttoned boot maintains its prestige and continues to be the requirement with tailored or demis-tailored costumes for out of door

white silk stockings are offered in the

for a sleazy weave in white silk is

colored hose, soon go to pieces.

WASHINGTON, August 11.—Senator Hollis of New Hampshire, democrat, flayed the cotton manufacturers of New England in a tariff speech today in which he declared New England had not been decalcified, and, whether one-sided development of this kind is best for any community.

In a recent contest in New England for United States senator certain Democratic members of the legislature chanced to be employees of a certain great textile corporation. They were asked not to vote for the caucus candidate. They were not threatened with discharge, but the implication was

An Increase of 40 Cents Over Last Year—Figures Issued at Office of Board of Assessors Today

The tax rate in Lowell for 1913 was announced this morning by the city assessors, and partly on account of the increase in the state and county taxes, an increase of 40 cents per $1000 over last year's rate was made, making the rate this year $19.40 per thousand.

JOHN M'GAROTY WAS GIVEN BAD BEATING

By Man Who Invited Him to His Room—Man and Woman Sentenced for Statutory Offense

You may talk about your prize fights and badly beaten up visages, but please withhold your judgment on the champion of them all when it comes to taking a bad beating until you have seen the countenance of John McGaroty. John started even, the stoical superintendent of police when he showed his face in police court this morning in response to Clerk Toye's call.

John was not a defendant. Oh, no, on the contrary, John was a very willing witness against Joseph Dupuis, who was charged with assault and battery upon him as well as being held on a statutory offense. According to McGaroty's testimony the defendant invited him into his domicile, 95 John street, to have a little nip of something stronger than tea and McGaroty went forthwith. Just what led up to the clash is not quite certain, but one fact is very positive, John received a fearful beating. He told the court the defendant hit him over the head with a chair, and Supt. Welch allowed that a chair must have been reduced to kindling wood. John's face resembled a war map and he said he was anything but a well man.

Unconscious Three Hours

McGaroty laid in the house, for over three hours before he regained consciousness. He then made his way to the street and at once summoned Officers Creamer and Sullivan to the scene of his abuse. The two officers found Dupuis and a woman companion in a state of intoxication and removed both to the station.

Caught Hands Down

Sergeant Duncan and Officers O'Sullivan and Hession proved a trifle too much for John McGaroty's in a three-for-a-quarter beer selling stunt. Complaints were made to Supt. Welch that the defendant was selling a large quantity of beer in his tenement on Fenwick street and the chief immediately started his liquor squad in pursuit of the quarry. Officer Sullivan entered the house kept by the defendant last Saturday night and procured

POSTOFFICE INSPECTOR

Might Recommend New Building for Lowell

Thos. Appleton, who was sent to Lowell to ascertain the postoffice requirements here, is a brother of Paymaster Appleton of the Locks & Canals Co. It will be of interest to everybody to know that Mr. Appleton's instructions were to look over the present building and see what additions and alterations were required and if he considered the building inadequate he was to look for a new postoffice site.

Mr. Appleton was not very much taken with Lowell's postoffice, but he did not say that he would recommend a new building. He has been connected with the treasury department for 15 years or more, the past ten of these as superintendent of construction on post offices, court houses, etc.

He has had charge of the erection of government buildings in Cretion, Iowa, Holyoke and Northampton, Mass.; Wheeling, W. Va.; Evanston, Wyo.; East St. Louis, Mo.; and Belleville, Ill. St. Charles, Mo., and other places. After the San Francisco earthquake in 1906 he was sent by the government to advise as to the needed repairs on the post office building there.

For the past three years he has been a resident of Chelsea and has superintended the building of the new post office there as well as the construction of the new customs house tower in Boston. Great reliance is placed upon his ability, judgment and experience by the treasury department, as he has been called in a consulting capacity, has been given authority to select sites for government buildings in various parts of the country and has also been delegated to settle controversies arising between contractors and other superintendents.

GREEKS VERY HAPPY

Over Peace Treaty—Will Celebrate Tonight

The Greeks of this city are very happy over the news of the signing of the peace treaty in the Balkan states, which was done yesterday morning, and accordingly they will hold a celebration this evening. It had been originally planned to have a celebration when the Lowell Greeks would return to this city, but the enthusiasm was so high yesterday that it was deemed advisable to celebrate now over the ceasing of hostilities and later when the brave soldiers return to the Spille city, they will be given a real reception.

The Sixth Regiment brass band has been hired for this evening, and shortly after seven o'clock all the members of the community, headed by this corps of musicians will parade the district, the procession to end at the church in Jefferson street, where a patriotic meeting will be held.

A religious service will be held and this will be followed by addresses by prominent speakers, the orator of the evening to be Hon. Constantine Papanichalopoulos of Boston, who will review the trouble of Greece since the war started with Turkey. A tribute will be paid to the memory of the young men who so gallantly gave up their lives for the love of their country while words of praise will also be given in behalf of those who are still in their motherland, but who will soon return to their adopted country.

Torches and sticks of red fire will be carried in the parade, and the entire district will be rejoicing over the close of the war which made so many widows and orphans.

having served in the Civil war when only 13 years of age. Previous to his connection with the treasury department he had been in the service of many of the western railroads in a similar position, notably the Great Northern, Union Pacific and Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroads.

Mr. Appleton was in Lowell last week, investigated conditions at the postoffice and made his report with blue prints, photographs, specifications, etc.

CHARGE OF MURDER AGAINST BRAKEMAN

Lowell Boy Who Was Killed in State of Montana Was Pushed Through Hole in Freight Car

COUNTY ATTORNEY CHARGES MURDER

The Carroll boy's mother, Mrs. Fannie Carroll, has received the following letter relative to the death of her son, from County Attorney C. R. Tisor:

Miles City, Montana, August 7, 1913

Dear Madam:—

I am very sorry to convey to you the sad news that your son, Thomas Carroll, met his death near here on the fifth day of August by being run over by a train.

The circumstances as disclosed by the coroner's inquest is as follows:

Your two sons, Thomas and James, together with two other boys, were riding in a box car between Glendive and Miles City, Montana. They were asleep in the car when the brakeman came in about 4.30 in the morning and drawing a six-shooter compelled them to climb through the end window of the car, and your son Thomas in going through the window either lost his hold or was pushed from behind, causing him to fall down between the cars on his head and was run over and killed.

I am prosecuting attorney for this county and I am going to file a charge against this man, charging him with murder.

(Signed)

C. R. TISOR,
County Attorney

Thomas Carroll, the Lowell boy who was run over and killed by a train in Miles City, Montana, is believed to have been pushed from the car in which he was riding by a brakeman and the authorities have started a thorough investigation. The parents of the boy have received a letter from an attorney there, stating that the brakeman thought to be responsible for the boy's death will be arraigned on the charge of murder.

An inquest was held over the remains of Carroll and the coroner's jury decided that Carroll came to his death by being forcibly ejected out of the end door of a box car.

The story of the inquest, as taken from a Miles City paper received in this city, today, is as follows:

At the inquest over the remains of Thomas Carroll, which was held by Coroner Hawkins yesterday, the jury consisting of John McAusland, fore-

BUILDING CONDEMNED A Wooden Structure in Hampshire St. Must go

INSPECTOR SAYS THAT IT IS DANGEROUS

New Fence at Chelmsford Street Hospital and New Closets at High School

The superintendent of the public building department is right onto his job and he means business, too. For some time past he has been active in looking over old dilapidated buildings in this city and condemning the same, and no later than this morning he sent a letter to Mrs. Emilie Emmond of 45 Hildreth street, giving her orders to tear down a certain wooden building at 59 Hampshire street within a week. A copy of the letter is as follows:

Lowell, Aug. 11, 1913.
Mrs. Emilie Emmond, 45 Hildreth st., Lowell, Mass.

You are hereby notified pursuant to an ordinance of the city of Lowell made and enacted, that the wooden building, of which you are the owner, located at 59 Hampshire street, in the city of Lowell, is in such a dilapidated condition that it has become a nuisance to public safety and so endangers the public. You are ordered, therefore, to remove or take down said building, or cause the same to be removed or taken down within one week from the receipt by you of this notice, otherwise you shall hold yourself amenable to the ordinance made and provided in such case.

Respectfully,
Francis A. Connor,
Inspector of Buildings.

Approved: Lawrence Cummings, Commissioner of Public Property and Licenses.

New Fence at Hospital
The large board fence surrounding a portion of the Chelmsford Street hospital has been torn down by the employees of the public building department and in its stead a fine cement and iron picket fence will be erected. This will be an innovation for the inmates of the institution, for it will enable them to get a good view of the surroundings, while at the same time it will afford the building more light and air.

The old board fence which was about 14 feet was constructed a good many years ago, when that part of the institution was used for lodging insane patients. Inasmuch as none of these patients are now being cared for at this place, the fence is of no use, and the superintendent decided to tear it down. The new fence which will be built some time in the fall will consist of cement pillars surrounded by iron balls, with iron pickets between, and will make the place much more attractive, and will also do away with that prison appearance the institution has had for years.

PROCLAIM GENERAL STRIKE IN ITALY

Syndicalist and Socialist Organizations Issued Manifesto—Leaders Preach Revolution

MILAN, Italy, Aug. 11.—A general strike throughout Italy was proclaimed in a manifesto issued today by the Syndicalist and Socialist Workmen's organizations here.

The manifesto urges all workmen's unions to take immediate action and to carry on the strike to the bitter end.

Preach Revolution.

Some of the leaders of the strike movement are preaching revolution, saying:

"We do not wish to follow the example of America where certain strikes have lasted as long as 18 months, the strikers receiving wages from the unions but in the end meeting moral and financial disaster. Here the strikers claim not only economic advantages, but aim at the subversion of the present basis of the capitalist oligarchy. The strike must, therefore, overthrow the socialistic organization, resting on the explanations of the workers for private advantages."

Every group of strikers today has been attacked by the troops, who in many cases have been stoned by strikers singing anarchistic songs.

Owing to the energy with which the

troops and the police have acted, the street cars were able to operate on the various lines.

At Charleville, about three miles outside of Milan, a striker lay down across the tracks in front of an approaching passenger train. The engineer was just able to stop the train before it reached the man, who then rose and called on the train crew to strike. The station master seized the man, some of whose comrades interfered and beat the officer. A detachment of carabinieri then came upon the scene and arrested all the strikers present.

According to despatches received here from Rome, Pisa and other places the workmen have made only a feeble response to the call for a general strike.

AUTHORITIES AT ROME READY TO REPRESS ANY DISORDERS

ROME, Italy, Aug. 11.—The authorities here are holding the garrison in readiness to repress any disorders which may occur in connection with the general strike ordered by the labor leaders, but very few of the workmen appear disposed to join in the movement.

Both the Quirinal and the Vatican are strongly guarded.

The butchers and grocers of this city are planning on having a big outing at Bass Point and Revere beach on next Thursday. All stores will close promptly at noon and eight special cars have been engaged to convey the members of the association to and from the beach. It is planned to have dinner at one of the hotels along the beach and there is no doubt but what the committee in charge will arrange a program full of fun.

If you are a doctor, doesn't it pain you to see your patients after waiting up two or three nights, come into your office completely exhausted? Wouldn't it be better to provide an office in a building where your patients would be carried right up to your office door in an easy running and absolutely safe elevator? The new Sun building provides such a service. Think it over, doctor!

LOBBY TO INVOLVE U. S. IN WAR

Pres. Wilson Shares Views of Sen. Williams Who Declared There is Attempt to Bring Clash

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—President Wilson let it be known today that he was inclined to believe there was an organized lobby existing in the United States and Mexico, the president does not regard the movement as extensive but as very troublesome, and referred to misrepresentations in some individual newspapers. He indicated that he shared the views of Senator Williams, who declared in a speech last Saturday that an organized lobby existed to involve the United States in war.

There is no occasion for alarm, in the opinion of the president, who told callers today that within the last 48 hours the Mexican situation had improved materially. It was made clear by the president with those with whom he discussed the situation that the instructions to John T. Lind, his personal representative, were chiefly to inform the American government how things stood, generally, in Mexico and just what were the opportunities for the good offices of the United States in the interests of peace.

Sooner or later, it was pointed out, Mr. Lind will make certain suggestions to the Huerta government through the American embassy, but in just what circumstances has not yet been fully determined upon. Anything in the suggestions that may properly be made public was revealed, according to administration officials here, and foreign governments will be constantly apprized of the various steps taken by the United States. This may not take place, however, for several days.

President Wilson has had no direct communication either with the Huerta government or the constitutionalist authorities, and he indicated to his callers today that he would welcome more information about the purpose of the constitutionalists.

It was learned, also, that the president has not yet formally considered recognition of the belligerency of the constitutionalists, but that insofar as territory alone is concerned he regarded that held by the constitutionalists as strong enough in proportion to that controlled by the Huerta government to make recognition of the constitutionalists not wholly unjustifiable from a diplomatic standpoint.

ARRIVAL OF MR. LIND CAUSE OF MANIFESTATION IN SUP-PORT OF HUERTA

mysterious mission to Mexico was the direct cause of a public manifestation yesterday in support of General Huerta's attitude toward American mediation, has of itself been devoid of any thrills.

When Mr. Lind, as the personal representative of President Wilson, alighted from his train last night after a tedious day's journey from Vera Cruz, there were only a few persons about the station who seemed at all curious to watch his movements. Numerous newspaper photographers were on hand to subject him to the ordeal of flashlights and Mr. Lind obligingly posed for many pictures.

Police on Guard

Mr. Lind persistently maintained the reference he has observed carefully since he was summoned from his home in Minnesota by President Wilson to undertake his mission to Mexico. Just what he is to do or just when he will begin negotiations for which he has come, are as great a mystery as before his arrival. He was accompanied to the capital by Mrs. Lind, William W. Canada, the consul at Vera Cruz, and Dr. William Bayard Hale, acting under instructions of the state department. The party was received by Nelson O'Shaughnessy, secretary of the United States embassy, who has been acting as charge d'affaires since the resignation of Ambassador Wilson, and Charles E. Parker, a member of the embassy staff.

Police in large numbers guarded the approach to the station, but as the party was driven off to a hotel, where reservations had been made, the public generally assumed a pathetic attitude and took little interest in the arrivals.

Reporters of a number of Mexican papers endeavored to interview Mr. Lind at his hotel but they met with little success.

Mr. Lind thus far had a comparatively uneventful experience in Mexico. Before leaving Vera Cruz, he was visited by General Gustavo Maas, the military commander there. The meeting took place at the train just before Mr. Lind's departure and General Maas also did him the honor to parade a small detachment of troops alongside his train.

The monotony of the trip in the regular day train from Vera Cruz to the capital was broken by an enforced delay by the wreck of a train ahead of the train.

While there was no demonstration of any kind after the arrival of Mr. Lind, still the streets were crowded with a silent throng which simply looked at the American representative as he was driven through the streets.

Mr. Lind and his party had an uneventful trip from Vera Cruz starting early this morning. He refused to make any comment or tell anything of his plans after his arrival and went directly to the consulate, retiring soon thereafter.

President Howard Elliott of the Boston & Maine and the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroads, accompanied by General Manager B. R. Pollock, Civil Engineer A. B. Corbitt, General Superintendent W. F. Ray and H. C. Robinson, superintendent of the southern division of the Boston & Maine, passed through this city en route to Boston yesterday afternoon after a three days' trip through New Hampshire, Vermont and western Massachusetts. It was the new president's first tour through this section since his election.

The party stopped in this city Friday noon before visiting the up-country cities but did not leave the train and no inspection of the local station was made. The special train with the president's car attached was sidetracked near the depot while luncheon was served and in less than an hour was on its way north.

It is stated that the purpose of the president's trip to this section was to inspect the railroad stations as far north as White River Junction. The special train did not stop at this station on its return trip yesterday afternoon.

TRAIN DERAILED AND TIPPED OVER

WHITMAN, Mass., Aug. 11.—Two passengers and a trainman were slightly injured when a passenger coach attached to a Boston-bound train on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad was derailed at a cross-over here and tipped over. They were the only persons in the coach at the time. In topping the car struck a railroad stand-pipe and demolished it.

William B. Enos of South Weymouth received injuries to the left side and knee. The trainman was F. Johnson, a ticket collector.

The third man injured was John Callahan of Whitman, who was cut by flying glass. He and Enos returned to their homes.

In a region which has been the scene of rebel operations.

Will be Careful

Mr. Lind said here he did not have the slightest intention of discussing Mexican affairs with private individuals. He said his business was with Mexico and he would be careful with whom he talked. There need be no apprehension, he added, that he would embarrass the government by any indiscretions of the sort.

There is reason to believe that before Mr. Lind's mission to Mexico is ended he will have suggested more than a mere fulfillment of the promise by General Huerta that elections be held.

It has been pointed out that such a demand would not be wholly consistent, since the promise to hold elections in October has already been made and intimations of bad faith on the part of the provisional administration are regarded as out of date at the present time.

Mr. Lind is not proposed to act hastily though he will lose no time, and it may be that all his work in Mexico will be finished within three weeks. If General Huerta continues unwilling to see him, Mr. Lind will transmit his communications through Nelson O'Shaughnessy, charge d'affaires of the United States embassy.

Mr. Lind and his wife did not come to Mexico prepared for anything beyond a brief visit, traveling with little baggage. The departure for Mexico was so hurried that it occurred to neither Mr. nor Mrs. Lind that warmer clothing would be wanted in the uplands of Mexico.

Last night Mr. Lind, without an overcoat, and his wife without wraps, shivered in the cold air here.

AMERICANS ARE FLEEING FROM MEXICO—GIRLS MISTREATED BY BANDITS

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 11.—Lily and Edna Gourde, the American girls who were mistreated by bandits near Tampico, Mexico, last week, while their father Matthew Gourde, bound to a tree, looked on, powerless to help them, arrived here last night on the German steamer Speewald from Tampico. They left today for their home in Corning, Ia. Thirty-six other American refugees were aboard.

Passengers declared that Americans were fleeing from Mexico, leaving everything behind them.

ENVOY LIND AND HIS PARTY ARRIVED AT MEXICO CAPITAL LAST NIGHT

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 11.—John Lind, special envoy of the president of the United States, with his party, arrived at the Mexican capital shortly after 8 o'clock last night after an all-day trip from Vera Cruz.

The police had taken extraordinary precautions to prevent any hostile demonstration against Mr. Lind or other citizens of the United States, and large detachments of police lined the streets outside the railroad station and escorted Mr. Lind and his party to the United States consulate, where they will stop for the present.

While there was no demonstration of any kind after the arrival of Mr. Lind, still the streets were crowded with a silent throng which simply looked at the American representative as he was driven through the streets.

Mr. Lind and his party had an uneventful trip from Vera Cruz starting early this morning. He refused to make any comment or tell anything of his plans after his arrival and went directly to the consulate, retiring soon thereafter.

three bottles of beer in exchange for marked silver. The defendant flew hurriedly to cover when the house was raided a few minutes later and endeavored to hide the coin, but Officer Hession proved to be Johnny-on-the-spot and located the marked piece of currency behind an old trunk.

The defendant pleaded not guilty, but had no defense to offer except to say that the officers did purchase the beer. He was ordered to pay a fine of $50 by Judge Earlight and complied with alacrity.

Overestimated Himself

Edward A. Flynn had a mistaken idea that he could get the best of Officer Foye when the latter went after him to place him under arrest Saturday night. Flynn got the biggest surprise of his life, however, when the Draught officer, small though he is, dragged him by the collar into the local police headquarters and had him booked for drunkenness.

Flynn paid a fine of $10 this morning for his attempted pugilism.

Land of Evangelists

Michael Reynolds who promised the court that he would at once retrace his footsteps to Nova Scotia was sent to jail for the next fifteen days. Frank W. Merrill was given a like sentence to the same institution. Alexander Murray Robert H. Grady and Daniel P. McKee, all three parole men, went back to the state farm.

Thomas Egan, Edward W. Leighton and Thomas Keating were all fined $15 for their third appearance for drunkenness and given a probationary term within which to pay their fines. Herbert P. Curtis, Michael Kazack, Henry P. Meade, Thomas Wilson and Joseph Souza, all of them in for their second time this year on the charge of drunkenness, received $5 fines. There were three $2 offenders and nine releases by the probation officer.

the threatened impeachment proceedings which are expected to be instituted as a result of the Fraxley legislative committee's preliminary report to the legislature tonight.

In view of the governor's contention that the present legislature has ceased to exist, the opinion is expressed by some of his supporters that an effort will be made to block the program of his opponents through some legal process.

Attorney General Carmody recently rendered an opinion that the legislature is still in session.

It is pointed out that if the governor's attorneys procure cognizance of this matter by any judicial tribunal, whatever the finding of such tribunal might be, the result would be to start the case on its way to the court of appeals, and as the judges of this court also are made by the constitution an essential part of the court of impeachment, it would be impracticable for them to act in this latter capacity until the judicial proceedings were finally settled. Even in the final adjudication should be adverse to the governor, it would greatly delay an impeachment trial and unless specially expedited the issue might not be determined before a new assembly qualifies.

Eugene Lamb Richards counsel to the Fraxley committee, who has been engaged in drafting the committee's report at Saratoga, was expected to have the result of the committee's presentation to the committee at the legislative sitting this evening.

The report is said to be short and to deal in the main with the governor's campaign contributions and stock transactions. Members of the committee have stated that they are holding in reserve information relating to other acts of the governor which they claim to be illegal. If the assembly deems such evidence as is incorporated in the report to be sufficient for impeachment proceedings there will be no present necessity for the resumption of the committee's hearings but it is understood that these matters will be thoroughly investigated in time for presentation at the trial if one is ordered.

VICTIMS OF AUTO CRASH

Women Refused to Give Names of Companions

MALDEN, Aug. 11.—Two young women here today after they had been in an automobile accident, revealed their identities this afternoon, but steadfastly refused to give the names of their companions in the early morning ride.

They describe themselves as Ivy Halverson of Cambridge and Emily Marcell of Somerville, artists' models. They said that their car skidded and turned turtle about half way between Parker and Sunning lake. A few minutes later there was an explosion and the machine was destroyed by fire.

Two men of the party remained on the scene while the women were picked up by a passing automobile and taken to the hospital. Mrs. Halverson suffered a concussion of the brain and was unconscious for several hours, but will recover. The other woman was not badly injured.

The police continued their efforts to learn the identity of the owner of the automobile.

SEVENTEEN MILITANTS SENT TO JAIL

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Seventeen suffragettes or sympathizers with the movement were sentenced in police court today to terms of imprisonment varying from a week to two months or bound over to keep the peace, as a sequel to yesterday's attempt to storm Premier Asquith's official residence in Downing street.

Sylvia Pankhurst, the leader of the storming party, was not among the prisoners as she had been taken direct to Holloway jail to serve another portion of her previous sentence.

"UNION IS THE LAW OF LIFE"

Disunion is Law of Weakness and Disintegration, Says Cardinal Gibbons at Catholic Convention

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 11.—Cardinal Gibbons delivered an address here last evening before the Convention of Federated Catholic Societies. He spoke in part as follows:

"Union is the law of life, of strength and growth and of development. Disunion is the law of weakness and disintegration. The American republic owes its material and political prosperity to the union and cooperation of the several states. If those states were disunited and exerting their forces in opposite directions like the present republic of Mexico, we would never have attained the prosperity that has marked our career. For four years, during the Civil war, we were disunited; and the result was shedding of fraternal blood, with imminent danger of the dissolution of the nation."

"The same principle can be justly applied to the influence of union of religious and moral forces in the development of Christianity. An enlightened and zealous laity is the glory of the Christian church. The most luminous periods of the church's history have been epochs conspicuous for laymen who have vindicated the cause of Christianity by their eloquence and their writings as well as by the sanctity of their lives. The golden age of Christendom gave birth to a long line of learned and intrepid apologetes of the gospel. Among them I might mention Justin Martyr, Minutius Felix, Athanasius, Ambrosius and Irenaeus who is styled the Christian Cicero."

Defender of Catholic Religion

"Let us indulge the hope—and this hope I cherish in my breast when I contemplate the scene before me today—that God will raise up in our own country and in our own day a formidable number of champions of Christ, who will be 'a light to the revelation of the Gentiles' and the glory of the people of Israel."

"When the laity are united with the bishop and the clergy in the cause of religion and humanity, then there is no such word as fail. We are bound to succeed, for God is with us, and if God is with us who can be against us? If there are two or three gathered together in the name of Christ, He declares that He is with them, surely His influence is paramount and irresistible when the voice of the bishop and clergy is reinforced by the multitude of earnest workers assembled before me today. Then indeed we form a triple cord which cannot be broken. We establish a 'triple alliance' far more formidable and enduring than the triple alliance of earthly potentates, for theirs is an alliance only of flesh and blood, but ours is a confederation cemented

"And why, my brethren, should you not co-operate with us? Are we not all, clergy and laity, children of the same heavenly father? Are we not all brothers and sisters of the same Jesus Christ? Has He not died for you as well as for me? Has He not as much care of you as He has for me? Are we not all sanctified by the same spirit? There are diversities of graces," says the apostle, "but the same spirit. There are diversities of ministries, but the same Lord. There are diversities of operations, but the same God who worketh all in all."

Same Bark of Peter

"We are all in the same bark of Peter, tossed about by the same storms and sharing the same sunshine. Your interests are our interests. We are all steering our course toward the same eternal shores. We are all heirs prospective of the same heavenly kingdom. There is not one reward for the priest and another for the laity. There is not one kind of crown for the pope and another for the peasant. The diadem of the pope and the bishop's mitre will not shine more brightly than the widow's hood in the kingdom of heaven unless they are adorned with the jewels of righteousness."

"The Apostle St. Paul pays the following beautiful tribute to the Christians of Thessalonica: 'You became followers of us and of the Lord, receiving the word in much tribulation with joy of the holy ghost, so that you were made a pattern to all who believe in Macedonia and Achaia,—and in every place your faith which is laudable is gone forth.'"

"May we not with propriety apply the words of the apostle to our federated societies, whose good works extend throughout the length and breadth of the United States? And if I may single out one society without prejudice to the merits of the others, I will name in a particular manner that splendid organization, the Knights of Columbus. They are our joy and crown. They are the glory of Jerusalem. They are the joy of Israel; they are the honor of our people. Wherever calumny raises its foul head, they are ever ready, like true knights, to smite the enemy. Whenever an appeal is made in the cause of religion or charity, they are always foremost in lending a helping hand."

Clergy Need Help

"Brethren of the laity, we of the clergy need your help. We learn from the history of the Primitive church what valuable aid the early Christians rendered to the apostles in the propagation of the gospel. And if the apostles with all their piety, zeal and grace, fresh from the inspiring presence of their Master, could not have accomplished what they did without the assistance of the laity, how can we hope to spread the light of truth without your hearty concurrence?"

"How then are you to co-operate with us? In the first place, by the open and honest profession of your faith, by being always ready to satisfy every one that asks you a reason for that hope which is in you. While you will accord to those who differ from you the right of expressing their religious opinions, you must claim for yourself the same privilege. You will ask for nothing more. You will be content with nothing less. And surely, if there is anything in this world of which you ought to be justly proud, it is this, that you are members of the religion of Christ."

"The days of Rome's imperial splendor the highest time a man could claim in the empire was that of Roman citizen. When St. Paul was threatened with being scourged he indignantly protested against such an ignominious punishment on the ground that he was a Roman citizen."

Citizens of the Church

"If the Roman was proud of being a citizen of Rome, how much should you glory in being a citizen of the republic of the church. Do you seek for antiquity of origin? Nearly 2000 years have rolled over her head, and she is today as fresh and vigorous as when she issued from the Cenece of Jerusalem. Time writes no wrinkles on her heavenly brow."

"Do you seek for wide expanse of territory? Her spiritual dominion extends over the surface of the globe. And where will you find a wisdom comparable to that of her saints, a wisdom which is born not of man but of God? Where will you find a heroism as sublime as that of her martyrs? There is a heroism that is not aroused by the sound of martial music or by the clash of arms on the battlefield, or by a lust for fame or by the emulation of comrades, but by a heroism inspired by a love for God and their fellow-beings."

3 ALARM FIRE AT REVERE

Destroyed a Three Story Dwelling

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—A three alarm fire of a supposedly incendiary origin last night destroyed a three-story dwelling on the Phillips estate, Aldrich avenue, Revere.

Sparks from the blaze set fire to several other houses in the vicinity and before the all-out was sounded the entire Revere department and several pieces of apparatus from Winthrop and Chelsea were put into action.

The destroyed building was situated on a hill near the Woodlawn-Revere line. The blaze, fanned by a high wind, lit up the sky for miles around and hundreds of persons, recalling the Chelsea conflagration of a few years ago, rushed to the spot.

For nearly three years the building, which was one of the oldest in that vicinity has been unoccupied. Several attempts already had been made to set fire to it, and last night's blaze is believed by the Revere police to be of an incendiary nature.

The fire was first seen by Patrolman Thomas O'Hara of the Revere police at 10:30 last night. A high wind had sprung up, and the blaze was gaining headway before he turned in the first alarm. Before the first call apparatus had put in its appearance, the progress of the blaze was such that O'Hara sounded a second and then a third alarm, and Winthrop and Chelsea apparatus were detailed to protect the town and assist in fighting the fire.

Because of its location on the Elbridge avenue hill and the distance separating it from the nearest buildings at the foot of the hill, none thought other buildings would be endangered. The brisk wind, however, caught up big sparks, driving them nearly 400 yards to the houses at the foot of the hill. Five of the latter caught fire simultaneously and various pieces of the apparatus were quickly despatched to put out the additional flames.

As they were performing this work other buildings were threatened with destruction and the vicinity of the Phillips estate was in a turmoil. Scores of persons residing there made preparations for hasty departures should the flames continue to spread.

FOUL PLAY SUSPECTED

Police Believe Maine Man Was Murdered

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 11.—Foul play is suspected in the death of John J. McDonald, aged 31, whose body was found beside the Boston & Maine railroad track west of Scarborough crossing yesterday. There were several bruises on the head and a small hole through the skull back of the right ear.

Coroner H. W. Rich expressed the belief that this hole could only have been made by some sharp instrument. McDonald had been visiting his brother in Boston, and it is believed he left that city Saturday night.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Oliver Sweeney Was Asphyxiated by Gas—He Is Now at St. John's Hospital and Will Recover

Oliver Sweeney, a middle aged man, was found unconscious in his room, 134 South street, last evening about 3 o'clock. The man had been overcome by gas, and he was removed to St. John's hospital in the ambulance.

Whether Sweeney attempted to end his life or whether the affair was an accident is not known. Last evening a strong odor of gas was detected in the house and an investigation resulted in the discovery of Sweeney lying unconscious in his room with the gas turned on. Patrolmen Clark and Considine were notified and after working over the man for some time succeeded in bringing him back to consciousness. At the hospital this morning it was stated Sweeney was all right and would be discharged in a day or two.

WILSON WILL AID WALSH

To Speak in Boston During Campaign

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—Dudley Field Malone, assistant secretary of state, left this city for Washington last night after a visit of several days, during which time he interviewed many of the democratic leaders on the situation in this state.

Mr. Malone will report to the president on the political conditions existing in Massachusetts. In fact, his visit to this state was made under instructions from President Wilson.

The president is keenly interested in democratic success in Massachusetts this fall. He regards the election as of great importance, as it will be the last test of the strength of the administration with the new tariff bill as the principal issue in the campaign.

Mr. Malone received a number of suggestions on federal appointments, particularly on the collectorship of Boston. He was also interested to get the opinions of the leaders on the collector of internal revenue, chief appraiser and surveyor of the port of Boston.

A number of names were talked of for the collectorship, among them Colonel William A. Gaston, James J. Storow, John Burnett, ex-Senator William Taylor, Richard Olney, 2d, and Charles D. Warren.

Mr. Malone said that the president would lend all the aid possible. In the election of Lieutenant-Governor Walsh, he stated that it was not improbable that Mr. Wilson would make one big speech in Boston during the campaign.

During this stay at the Algonquin club, Mr. Malone went over the situation thoroughly with Mr. Walsh.

He offered to take the stump for Mr. Walsh during the last 10 days of the campaign in this state, and promised that a number of leaders of national importance would be sent to Massachusetts to aid in the fight to elect the democratic candidate and to defend the tariff bill.

"No efforts will be spared to elect Mr. Walsh and the democratic ticket, so far as the administration is concerned," said Mr. Malone. "I find that the party is united in support of the Lieutenant-governor, and I am much pleased with the prospect of democratic victory here this fall."

AUTOS CRASH ON CURVE

Occupants Thrown Out—None Seriously Injured

NEWPORT, Aug. 11.—Half a dozen people had a narrow escape from death when two automobiles, going at full speed, crashed together at the dangerous corner of High and Union streets here yesterday afternoon.

The number of the first car is assigned in the register to J. H. Emery of Fiddesford, Me. The other car was owned and driven by Walter M. Ray, 28 Wachusett street, Hyde Park.

The two cars came together with terrific force, tearing the wheels from the Ray car and almost demolishing it. Several people were thrown about and severely shaken up, but all escaped serious injury.

An Inspiration

Two fast elevators always running and the other up-to-date features of the new Sun building are an innovation for Lowell and the patrons of the building.

NEGATIVE CHRISTIANITY

Rev. Dr. Ward's Subject at Union Service

In a rather unique sermon preached at a union congregational service, held in the Kirk Street church, Sunday morning, Rev. George M. Ward, D. D., said that Christ was the savior, not because he paid his taxes or was a law abiding citizen, but because of his devotion, his passion for the saving of souls.

"Is the malapropos of your life the burning desire to win souls? We measure our love by its quality, rather than by its quantity. More keeping of the commandments is nothing; selling all you have, and giving to charity is philanthropy. Every man's cross is something he is not going to lay down to win heaven. And that kind is the nearest to goodness we are going to get in this world."

Worship Street Baptist

At the Worship Street Baptist church, Sunday morning, Rev. C. E. Davis preached on "How May I Discover Truth?" It was a union service of the Worship Street Baptists and Methodists and a large congregation was present. Mr. Davis' sermon was a plea for the study of the Bible.

First Baptist Church

At the First Baptist church, Sunday morning, Rev. Guy C. Lamson of Philadelphia preached morning and evening and conducted the lesson at the summer Sunday school.

What is your claim on heaven? You are not a murderer, of course you are not; you are not a thief, because honesty is the best policy; you are not well bred for that; you do not lie because liars are invariably found out. But, supposing you are not any of these things for the very reasons I have suggested, what sort of an outfit are you anyway?

"Our lack of enthusiasm, devotion, lack of idea of sacrificing anything if we can win eternity. It isn't enough that you have never committed any of the greater sins. Usually fine persons mentally are 'clean physically.' But have these fine persons fitted themselves for eternity?"

"How many rich men would there be in this world if they had not exerted their power? They could not have become rich by simply remaining inert and wishing to become rich. And so it is with eternity; we cannot inherit it unless we exert effort to do so. One must be positive if he is to win anything."

"It is the way of this world to ask if a man has anything against him, and the answer usually is that there is nothing proven. But God will ask."

Walden, Braintree, New Bedford and Boston harbor were the scenes of the four fatalities which in nearly every case were marked by exciting incidents. This, added to the seven drowned in East Freetown Saturday, makes a total of 11 in 48 hours.

The victims were: Walter Hubbert, 30, of the Waverly Hospital, drowned from canoe in Lake Quannapowitt, Wakefield.

George Gray, Jr., 17, of South Quincy, drowned in Quincy reservoir, Braintree.

Frank Dabut, of New Bedford, drowned in Wamsutta Pond.

Edward Dunfry, 26, Houghton square, Lynn, drowned from motor boat off Nix's Mate.

WILL BE 94 YEARS OLD TOMORROW

Mr. Perkins Bids Fair to Make the Century Run

Major Gilbert Perkins will observe the 94th anniversary of his birth at his well appointed home in Liberty street, tomorrow. The observance will be quiet and informal as has been his custom for years.

Mr. Perkins is six feet in height and weighs about 155 pounds. He has varied but little in weight, he says, in the last 10 years. He enjoys fairly good health for a man of his advanced years. His stomach, he says, is weaker than it was years ago. He uses but very little tea or coffee, and his dinner about noon, he says, is his best meal of the day. He eats meat at noon and has strengthening broths and soups.

Mr. Perkins is fond of driving and if the weather is favorable he drives in and about the city every afternoon. He learned horseback riding when in Canada and was frequently the leader in processions here. He is the owner of a farm in Canada which is handled by his brother, seven years younger than himself. Mr. Perkins was always fond of agricultural pursuits and was a trustee of the Middlesex North Agricultural society for years.

Through the daily newspapers he keeps in touch with all the important events of the day. In his younger days he was a member of a number of Lowell organizations and was a constant attendant at their meetings.

Mr. Perkins was never easily discouraged and he advises young men to have pluck and perseverance. He comes of a long-lived race, but there was not much money in his native place or where his parents made their home later in Vermont and he determined to seek work elsewhere.

His sister had been in Lowell and she told him of the advantages here for a young man. When a Vermont drover bought a boy to go with him to the Brighton market young Perkins was engaged to accompany him. When they reached a town 30 miles from where they started the drover sold his cattle to another drover.

This made it necessary for young Perkins to seek another position or use the small amount of money he saved to get home. He found a position with a pedlar going to Massachusetts and they rode and walked to Lowell.

Fourteen hours a day was the rule in the Lowell mills when Mr. Perkins was engaged at 75 cents a day. When he worked all the week and paid all his bills he had 31 left. The position of overseer attracted him as that official was getting $3 a day. To obtain it Mr. Perkins said it was necessary to have a better education than he possessed. He says he went to evening school here for two years, paying for it out of his savings.

In the meantime he was advanced to second hand at $1.25 a day and later

was made overseer of weaving for the Tremont company. When two of the mills of that company were torn down to give way to another large mill, Mr. Perkins secured a position as a traveling salesman in Virginia and Maryland among the soldiers. He was so successful that his Boston employer agreed to keep him as long as he wished to remain.

Mr. Perkins, however, returned to Lowell and was made overseer of weaving in the new large mill of the Tremont company. He remained there until T. S. Shaw became agent. Mr. Perkins while employed by the Tremont company was offered a position as agent of a cotton mill at Hooksett, N. H., but declined.

After giving up his position as overseer of weaving Mr. Perkins resumed work as a traveling salesman and traveled all over the United States. In politics Mr. Perkins has been a republican in national and state affairs but an independent for many years in municipal elections. He served in the common council in 1841 and 1850. He has always been well informed and was a good debater in his younger days.

Mr. Perkins says in his younger days in Vermont, he was a good wrestler and seldom met an athlete who could throw him. Young men in Vermont he said before the days of the railways were not much discouraged when told if they did not have much money, they must walk most of the way if they wanted to get to the manufacturing centers of Massachusetts or to Boston.

His father was a colonel in the Vermont militia. His own liking he says for horseback riding was acquired while he served as a member of a cavalry company in his early days.

Mr. Perkins was born in Potton, Que. Aug. 12, 1819, of American parents. His hearing is excellent and his memory of events is remarkable. Hosts of friends will congratulate him on his birthday anniversary.

SEVEN DROWNED AT LONG POND

Motor Boat, Overloaded, Sank at Lakeville Resort

Bodies Were Recovered Within a Radius of 15 Ft.—Laid Out in Row

LAKEVILLE, Aug. 11.—When the bodies of the seven victims of Saturday night's power boat accident on Long Pond were recovered by police grappling irons early yesterday morning, floating to the arms of George Wright of Brockton, the only man to lose his life, were found two women, their desperate clutch unloosened even in death. Close by, their arms locked about each other, were two girls. All the bodies were recovered within a radius of 15 feet.

The drowned:

MRS. EDITH E. HAVEN, aged 21, 55 Highland street, Brockton.

GEORGE E. WRIGHT, aged 22, 1293 Main street, Brockton.

MRS. EMMA ROYLE, aged 28, 156 Washington street, New Bedford.

MISS MABEL BROWN, 327 County street, New Bedford.

MISS ANNIE SWEENEY, aged 18, Grinnell street, New Bedford.

MISS SADIE McCALL, 191 Bonney street, New Bedford.

MISS ATTIE HAMILTON, aged 32, 241 Washington street, Taunton.

The rescued:

MRS. HENRY RAYMOND, aged 40, 103 Bonney street, New Bedford.

J. JAMES STEPHENS, 55 Oak street, Taunton.

LUTHER M. DAYTON, 2D, aged 21, 32 Ray street, New Bedford.

The 15-foot power boat in which the party of 10 were proceeding from Sec. and Island to Lakeside Park was towed ashore today, bailed out and found to be apparently in a good condition.

From the stories told by the three survivors Saturday night it was believed that the bottom had dropped out. An examination yesterday showed only a slight leak around the stuffing box such as is common in boats of her type.

Under ordinary circumstances the leak would not amount to a bucket a day, but it is believed that the craft was too heavily loaded and took in water over the side. When the crowd became nervous at sight of the water and shifted positions it is the opinion of the police that the water poured in, causing the stern to sink.

Bodies Laid Out in a Row

Albert Joan of Brockton, owner of the craft, was in charge of the work of raising it yesterday, assisted by Frederick B. May of New Bedford and George Macy. A number of other power boats, skiffs and canoes filled with summer residents hovered about the scene of the tragedy.

The bodies on being recovered were placed side by side on the shore near the New cottage. Later they were taken in charge of New Bedford, Taunton and Middleboro undertakers and prepared for burial.

Long Pond was a sad place yesterday. The victims in the greatest water tragedy the lakes ever knew were personal and intimate friends of many who gathered on the banks. Even hours afterward, these friends were stunned and seemed hardly to comprehend what had taken place.

RACE FOR CUP AROUND CAPE

By Old Time Schooners of New York Yacht Club's Fleet Started

Weather Very Clear and Yachts Made Very Fast Time

VINEYARD HAVEN, Aug. 11.—The race for the Tod cup around Cape Cod by the old-time schooners of the New York Yacht club's fleet, was started an hour after sunrise today under strong conditions.

Last night's thunder showers and rain were followed by a clear north-west breeze that whipped Nantucket sound into white foam and was blowing a full 25 knots when the fleet left the harbor. Four schooners came out to the start off East Chop, the Endymion, Sea Fox, Corona and the Katrina. For some reason the Boston schooner Constellation and the New York boat Ariel did not appear when the starting signal was sounded at 6.10.

The yachts did not break out their anchors in the harbor until a few minutes before the start as it was a quick run across the line.

The Endymion was the leader and with all sails set, including her number 2 jib topsail, she tore by the committee boat at 6.15. The flagship Sea Fox was 25 seconds behind, also going very fast, while the Katrina started at 6.12.30 and the Corona at 6.13.30.

As soon as the yachts were away, the regatta committee was transferred from the tug to the steam yacht Corsair, which started after the flying fleet.

The committee had been gone about a half-hour when the Constellation made sail and passed off by East Chop at 6.50, 40 minutes after the starting signal. Shortly after 7 o'clock the Ariel also got under way and passed East Chop at 7.05.

The Constellation was the scratch boat, allowing all other boats from 25 minutes to an hour and 15 minutes for the 55 miles.

Yachts Made Fast Time

The weather was very clear and the yachts made fast time down Nantucket sound, the Endymion passing Hedge Fence lightship at 8.40 and reaching Cross Rip lightship a few minutes after 7 o'clock. The wind was from the northwest and it looked as if the yachts would have it barely free until after passing Pollock Rip lightship.

The rest of the fleet, including the 50-footers, left about the same time as the racers and by 8 o'clock their squad was well on its way to Provincetown. All of the 50-footers made the run under tow.

Many races around Cape Cod have been fraught with adventure and nearly all of them have developed some historic incident. The New York Yacht club fleet has ventured around the sandy peninsula half a dozen times in the last quarter of a century, while the Eastern Yacht club has held four such events within the past seven years, three of them for the cup offered by Commodore F. Lewis Clark, won last June by the schooner Elara.

One of the longest races around the Cape was in 1837, when the New York fleet ran from this port to Bar Harbor, a distance of 225 miles. In about 32 hours. The feature of this race was the wonderful 175-mile run down the wind from Pollock Rip to Baker Island, during which all the yachts carried spinnaker for more than 20 hours.

The around-the-cape record is held by the Constellation both to Provincetown and Marblehead. The grand old Burgess schooner covered the former distance of 105 miles in ten hours and 25 minutes in 1891 and the latter course of 85 miles in 8 hours and 25 minutes in 1892.

100 Wrecks Took Place

With a southwest breeze the run over Nantucket shoals and down the back side of the cape is usually very enjoyable despite the fact that nearly every mile of the course from East Chop light to Wood End at Provincetown has been the scene of some marine disaster. The fleet is warned to keep well off the Peaked Hill bars or the knuckle of the cape, where nearly 100 wrecks have taken place within the past century and where the greater part of the wreckage from the steamer Portland came ashore in 1835. Under southwesterly conditions the race is a broad reach of 35 miles to Pollock light on the starboard tack, a run of 30 miles before the wind to Hinchland light and a reach of 15 miles on the port tack with gradually increasing shoals to Race Point, and a five-mile beat along the outer Provincetown shore to the finish off Wood End.

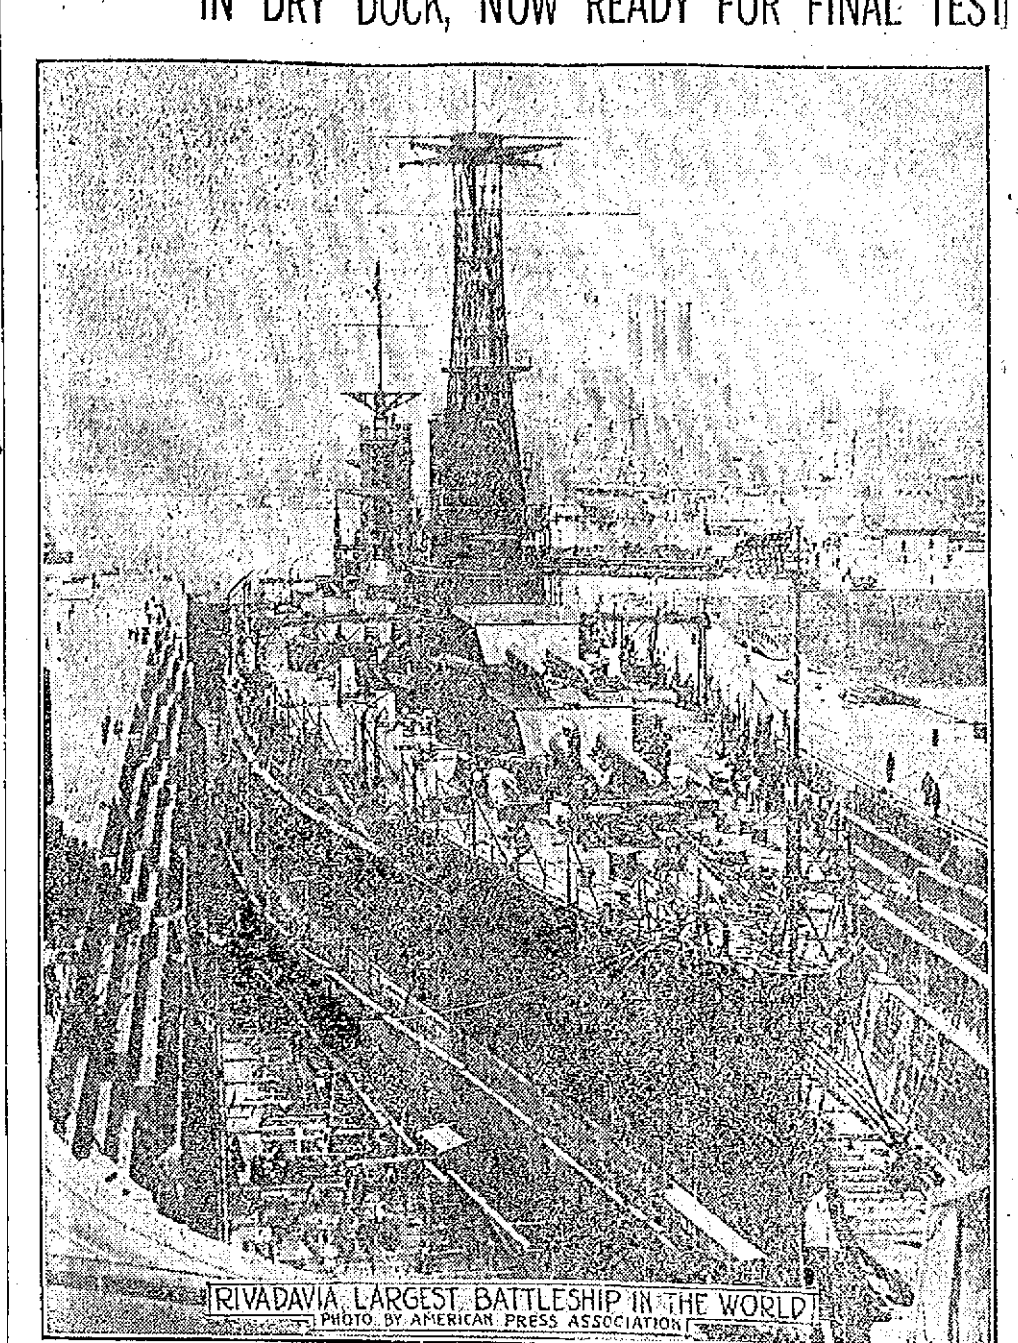

RACERS MADE QUICK RUN FROM VINEYARD HAVEN TO NANTUCKET SHOALS

CHATHAM, Aug. 11.—The Tod cup racers made a quick run from Vineyard Haven to Nantucket shoals, the Endymion covering the 25 miles from East Chop to the Handkerchief lightship in a trifle under two hours. The wind increased to nearly 20 miles an hour after the yachts ran down Nantucket sound and light sails were taken in and fore topsails hoisted. The yachts turned the Handkerchief lightship as follows: Corona, 8.05; Sea Fox, 8.12; Katrina, 8.25.

It was a close fetch to the Shoal lightship and the yachts met a head tide so that the speed was somewhat decreased. The yachts turned the Shoal lightship in this order: Endymion, 8.15; Corona, 8.42; Sea Fox, 8.50; Katrina, 9.05.

Heading to Pollock Rip lightship

RIVADAVIA, LARGEST BATTLESHIP IN THE WORLD! PHOTO BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—After the great new Rivadavia, the biggest battleship in the world, built by American shipbuilders for the Argentine Republic, had been scraped and painted at the Brooklyn navy yard dry dock she was ready to depart for her final trial speed tests off Rockland, Me., over the government course. The Rivadavia was brought to Brooklyn, as the dry dock there was the only large enough to accommodate her. She was launched by the Fore River Shipbuilding company at Quincy, Mass., on Aug. 26, 1911, and was ready for service in about a year. The Rivadavia is modeled after the Arkansas and Wyoming, but is 1500 tons larger than either of them. The displacement of the Rivadavia is 27,500 tons, and she has twelve 12-inch guns, all of which can be fired at one broadside. The dimensions of the Dreadnought are: Length, 577.8 feet; width, 66 feet.

CHARLESTON, W. Charleston and Bluefield are believed to be the principal headquarters of the gang, although their operations have covered many other towns.

CHARGE OF MURDER

man: James Sipes, H. M. Hanson, Miles Wilmes, John Avench and Gus Anderson brought in a verdict that accused came to his death by being forcibly ejected out of the end door of a box car on the Northern Pacific railway while the train was going about the rate of 15 or 20 miles an hour.

Refused to Testify

Testimony on only one side of the case was taken as the railroad men, acting under advice of counsel, declined to give testimony, the only grounds on which such a refusal could be considered by the coroner being that such evidence as they would give might be considered incriminating and as the case will undoubtedly be taken into district court by the county attorney, the defense will not be heard until that time, so that at this time only the statement of the companions of deceased are available.

Brothers Were Together

From this testimony it appears that Thomas Carroll, his brother, James, Jack and William Delaine were on their way to Butte, the Carroll boys coming from Lowell, Mass., and the Delaine boys being on their way from Portland, Maine. The Carroll boys have an uncle, a miner living at Butte. The boys were traveling in a box car and a brakeman, Chas. McCarty, being identified as the man, entered the car when the train was in the vicinity of Condon, east of Fallon, and ordered them to climb out. James Carroll was the first to crawl out the end door and the Delaine boys followed. All got out safely except the deceased. The other claim that he came through the door as though he had been kicked or pushed through, and he fell between the cars to the tracks. James Carroll claimed that he attempted to get the train crew to stop the train and take the remains with the train to some town, but that they refused. It was also stated that at least two passenger trains and one freight passed over the body after the accident.

Body Horribly Mangled

The body was cut to pieces and the remains were unrecognizable. Justice of the Peace Graff of Fallon heard of the accident and wired for the coroner and undertaker and instructions were given to the conductor of train No. 2 to take them on at Miles city and let them off at Condon, which was done, and the remains were by them brought to Miles City.

Net loss, 349.

The assessors in preparing the tax rate have made the rate sufficiently large to take care of all the statements for 1913, in compliance with chapter 523 of the acts of 1912, which means that next year there will be no such thing as loans as there was this year. This is responsible for about half the increase.

State Tax Increase

The state tax increase this year is $15,777.50, while the state highway reaches $17,500. The new tax on grade crossing, which comes for the first time in the history of Lowell is $333.85, while the tax for auditing the municipal accounts, which was not in existence last year, is $1,197.50. The county tax increase is $3274.52. The increased levy by the city is $45,000, and the increase in valuation of $2,574,417, practically covers it.

The city appropriations for 1912 were $1,100,000 as against $1,455,500 this year, making an increase of $355,000. The Lowell Textile school appropriation for 1912 is the same this year, that is $5000. The state tax in 1912 was $137,157.50, while this year it is $154,150, making an increase of $16,992.50.

State Highway Tax

The state highway tax last year was $115, while this year there is an increase of $17.50. The county tax in 1912 came to $75,508.60, while this year it reaches the amount of $78,759.42, making a difference of $3250.82. The total increase up to overlays in 1912 was $23,137.46, while this year it is $24,594.23, making an increase of $1,456.77. The total appropriations in 1912 were $1,631,905.10, as against $1,704,107.39 this year; the increase in appropriations being $72,202.29.

APOSTOLIC DELEGATE

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 11.—Appreciation of his reception and treatment during the past week while he has been in Maine participating in the celebration of the ter-centenary of the first Catholic mission in New England, was expressed by Rt. Rev. John Bonzanne, the apostolic delegate at Washington, as he took his departure today for Burlington, Vt. He will visit the Catholic summer school at Cliff Haven, N. Y., this week, and expects to reach Washington next Saturday.

The appointment was made at the request of creditors and it is understood that a plan of reorganization is contemplated.

The court also dissolved an injunction by which William B. and Charles D. Plunkett were restrained from foreclosing a mortgage of $30,000 on the company's real estate, satisfactory arrangements having been made to protect the receivers.

Joe Burns has everything in his favor when he climbs on to the Detroit bench—Burns has the build that delights the eye of a big league manager. He is tall, rangy, handles himself easily and can run like a scared antelope. It would not surprise anyone to see the Portland center-fielder stick when he lands with Jennings.

Gardner showed Harvard football followers that his broken arm was in first class shape when he pulled his boat home a winner Saturday in the Intermediate Sculling Championships. Gardner suffered a broken arm during last season and it was feared that he could not be used this fall on the Crimson eleven.

The pace is beginning to tell on McGraw's Giants and the Phillies are drawing a comeback stunt not often seen in baseball. However, the consensus of opinion is still in the New York manager's favor.

Another baseball trade is rumored now that the talk has died down about the Tris Speaker-Ty Cobb deal. The last gossip is that Speaker will go to Washington at the end of the season and that McBride and Miller will join the Red Sox. McBride it is said will supersede Bill Carrigan as manager. This tale, on the face of it, looks foolish, but who can tell after the release of Jake Stahl?

Ray Keating showed in his home town yesterday when the New York Highlanders played an exhibition game with the Bridgeport team of the Eastern association. Keating allowed the home club but one run in the six innings he worked. New York won out by a 3 to 2 score.

southpaw pitcher who has just joined the Senators from Hackensack, N. J., refused to pitch a game on Sunday when Manager Griffiths sent him into the box. Harper told Griffiths that he had promised his old mother that he would not play ball on Sunday and would not break that promise even to save himself from release. The Washington manager told the boy that he was looking for such men as he who were not afraid to stand up and state an opinion. There is no fear of this youngster having a "streak."

Granger, the colored Dartmouth runner, added the finishing touches to Mel Sheppard's descent from championship form when he beat the former Olympic star in 2:12 over the 1/2 mile route. Sheppard is all in and had better quit.

Chicago fans are now wondering whether or not Jake Stahl would accept the leadership of the White Sox should it be offered to him. The manager of the Red Sox has said that he would never enter professional baseball in any capacity again but Jake will find the name's temptations stronger than he reckons for Jimmy Callahan, to say the least, is unpopular in Chicago.

Five weeks more of the New England league season! The fans will see some great old battles at Spaulding Park before the 13th of September arrives. Lowell winds up the season here playing five games in Lowell the last week of the race.

New Bedford again tomorrow and dear old Jesse Burkett here on Wednesday. Jesse is not quite as confident as he was after taking four games out of Worcester's last series with Lowell.

DOPE ON THE FOUR LEADERS

Teams are Now Entering the Home Stretch—5 More Weeks of New England League Ball

With only five weeks remaining to be played in the New England league, the race between Worcester, Lawrence, Lowell and Portland is as close as fiction could have it. Every one of these four clubs has practically as good a chance of pulling down the flag as the other three. All four managers claim the league trophy, but time alone will decide this year's pennant winner for the dope of all the wisecracks who follow New England league ball has been sadly upset this season. Let's take a glance over the resources of each team.

Worcester in Lead
Worcester today stands at the top of the ladder. Content to lag behind during the first part of the season, Burkett is now straining every nerve to keep his team in the van. It looks from the gallery as though the team is a trifle stale, although not as badly off in this respect as Lawrence. Manager Pieper has been plugging his men along with mercurial persistence for the past month and his team would never have stayed in the lead as long as it did if it were not for the fact that Pieper set a grueling pace from the start of the season.

Lowell and Portland Freshen
Lowell and Portland are fresher than their two rivals. There is one weak spot in each team or rather one position which is filled by a tired player. Both Daly and Hayden have caught the major portion of their respective teams' contests and both are playing much inferior ball than they are capable of. Daly has had even less rest than Hayden and whether he can stand the strain which will be heaped upon him for the next five weeks is an open question.

Duffy Making Good
Hugh Duffy is practically the whole Portland team. Composed almost entirely of the old Fall River team, which never had a look-in for better than seventh place, Duffy has rounded out a baseball machine out of a mediocre club. Bowcock at second, Burns in the outfield, and Hayden behind the bat are the only three men who are really ball players. Hickman at short is a good hitter and can dig up hard chances, but his work is erratic and not to be depended upon. If the Maine club wins the pennant, Duffy should not be awarded the flag for it will rightly belong to Hugh Duffy.

Burkett a Wise One
Worcester also possesses a team similar in some respects to Portland. Burkett, as a baseball organizer, can't be beaten. His manipulation of a ball club is well known. Carroll, behind the bat, is a good man, although his lack of height is a great drawback. Ross at third can hit, but knows nothing about the hot corner. He is a big, unfinished slugger. Walsh in centerfield, is Burkett's best outfielder. He can run, field and hit the ball. His ordinary ball players are only ordinary ball players. Van Dyke and Bushelman are both very good pitchers when in form. Duffy, by the way, isn't a heavier with possibilities.

Lawrence Slipping
Lawrence seems to have very nearly played herself out to her feet but may yet fool us. Manager Pieper's main strength lies in his outfield. Brugger, O'Connell and Lyster are all sluggers that are feared and respected by every pitcher in the circuit. Any one of this trio is liable to break up a game with men on bases. Carlstrom at first is a good man. Since his sale to the Red Sox, however, he has not been playing the brand of ball he exhibited the earlier part of the season. Mahoney, Phoenix and Courtney are only average players, while Fiermaler, Pieper's first string catcher, can't hit a peach basket, although a valuable man in his position. The Lawrence pitchers are not going as well by 50 per cent. as they did the first of the season.

Lowell Still Looks Good
From the individual dope Lowell has the best team of the four. To begin with, Daly, if he keeps up, is the best catcher in the league. He has a lot to learn about baseball, but stands way above the other backstops even if he is green. Hayden is the superior of any man in the league on the first sack and is the most reliable a league when he swings his club in a pinch. Miller at second covers a lot of ground, throws well and is a handy man with the club. Lowell's greatest weakness is at third base. While Dee is a good fielder he loses his head in a fielding pinch and has thrown away more than one game by his wildness. Aubrey at shortstop is a great field general, but is not doing very well himself. However, if he doesn't go along too badly he is a valuable man on account of his inside knowledge of the ball. Magee in left field can take his place in either of the big leagues and distinguish himself. He is playing the greatest game of his career this season. Clemens in center is a sure flier on fly balls. His one weakness is a ground ball to the outfield. Clemens is battling well over the .300 mark. DeGroot, although not a sure man with the bat, will nevertheless drive in many runs with his long hits. DeGroot is not a good fielder, but makes many wonderful catches. Henderson, Finneran and Zeller are three sterling twirlers.

Any Club's Pennant
This is the way things stand now with the four leading teams in the race, but as previously stated it is any club's day. Much depends on luck in baseball that the team with a slight advantage over its opponents can always be picked as the winner. However, let's get behind Manager Gray's outfit and give them a boost for that pennant! What do you say, boys?

AMATEUR BASEBALL

The T. R. and T. of North Billerica were defeated by the Y. M. C. I. base, North Billerica Saturday afternoon at 12 to 10. The features of the game were 5 to 2. The holding of the Billerica boys was poor while the Lawrence aggregation put up a fine brand of baseball.

The Mt. Groves defeated the Cardinal A. C. last Saturday by a score of 12 to 10. The Mt. Groves want a game with the Dracut A. C. for next Saturday. Phone 3330.

The Ponies defeated the West Ends in a fast and interesting game Saturday afternoon on the Dixwell grounds by a score of 5 to 3. The game was a hard fought one all the way through and many good plays were pulled off by both sides. The features of the game were the batting of Gannon and the fielding of Noonan of the Ponies, while Eugene Donovan, the Holy Cross catcher, and the Morrison brothers, excellent for the West Ends. The Ponies presented a very neat appearance in their white uniforms.

The score by innings:
Ponies ..... 0 0 3 0 0 1 1—5
West Ends ..... 0 0 1 0 0 1 0—3
Batteries: Riley and Gannon for the Ponies. Lambert and Morrison for West Ends. Score: O'Hagen.

DAVIS INTERNATIONAL TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP
CUP BACK IN AMERICA, THANKS TO McLOUGHLIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—R. D. Wren returned to America with the Davis international tennis championship cup, which was won by the American team in England. Maurice McLoughlin, the national champion, who was the star member of the challengers, and the other three members of the victorious team took a later ship home, having gone to the continent to rest after their exertions. The Davis cup comes back to America after ten years absence. With the revival of tennis in the United States the winning of the cup was a big event, and enthusiasts hope America will be able to keep it for many years.

GRAND CIRCUIT MEET

Matron Stakes of $10,000 at Detroit

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 11.—The Matron stakes of approximately $10,000 with trotting and pacing divisions, was the feature of the grand circuit meet scheduled to open at the state fair grounds this afternoon. Practically all the best youngsters in training, except Etawah, were among the trotters but the absence of this colt, which has shown remarkable speed, indicated a better contest because of his absence. Only three starters were expected in the pacing divisions.

Other events on the card were the 2:15 trot, $1000 and the board of commerce $2000 stake for 2:15 pacers, hobbles barred. This last named race is the only one of the card to be staged on the "big line" this year.

DIAMOND DAZZLES

Joe Ferrin still continues to do good work with the champions. The lad had got two hits Saturday, one a double, and made two fine catches. Pieper certainly is getting a lot out of the youngster.

Frank Chance, manager of the New York Yankees, is now an actor. He has been engaged by a moving picture company to take the leading part in a scenario entitled "The Peerless Leader," some of the scenes of which will be laid at the Polo grounds, New York. Chance has been rehearsing his role in the studio at Jersey City since Monday. Catcher Seaver, Outfielder Danley and Second baseman Hartzell will also appear in the film.

Tom Keady, the former New England leaguer, is acting as a scout for Connie Mack in the Twin State league. He is watching the work of Fred Carpenter, the former Holy Cross player, particularly.

Vice President Barnard of the Cleveland American club declared that there is absolutely no truth in the report that the Chicago, Boston and Cleveland teams are arranging a three-cornered deal which will take Second baseman Lajoie away from Cleveland to the Red Sox.

Unofficial records give Lajoie a batting average of .344 and he has been one of the bulwarks of the team all season except for a few weeks, when he was out of the game because of injuries.

Recruits trying to burst into the major leagues have fairly hard times in their tryouts, but they can't compare with the initiation of a bushier trying to get a job for the first time with a minor league club.

This one is told of a youngster who had an idea he would like to play with the Clevelander team. His name was Lathers, and his only experience prior to his try-out was with sand lot teams at Salem, Ore. The Clevelander manager told him to play left field during one of the spring games and Lathers took his place.

Somebody knocked a high easy fly, which Lathers took in his hands, but let drop to the ground. Two scores came in. A couple of innings later he muffed a liner in murderous fashion, and the climax came in the eighth, when a ball bounded off his head and lost the game for Clevelander.

All the time he had been pained to the limit by the fans, and he was getting so nervous he could scarcely walk without tripping. It was his turn to bat in the final round and he whiffed miserably. A gang of men and boys followed him from the park feeling

Loss of $100,000 Caused by Cloudburst

COLORADO CITY, Colo., Aug. 11.—Damage estimated at $100,000 was caused by a cloudburst last night, of which this city bore the brunt. Crops were badly damaged, country roads were so badly washed that they will require thousands of dollars to repair, and at least fifty families were rendered homeless by the flood.

Several narrow escapes from death were reported by the police. The storm swept down from the Garden of the Gods in a southeasterly direction. Dozens of homes on Colorado avenue were flooded three to five feet deep and a score of more families sought refuge at higher points.

LOWELL LOST IN 14 INNINGS

PITCHER FINNERAN

Finneran Pitches Heady Game—Worcester Jumps Into Lead—Locals Drop Into Fourth Place

Burkett, with his Worcester Busters, took one of the hardest fought games from the locals Saturday that Lowell has engaged in this season, 14 innings being necessary to decide the long end of a 2 to 1 score. The final run was scored when Aubrey dropped Miller's throw which would have completed the inning. The fast gathering darkness was partly responsible for the Lowell shortstop's misplay. Finneran and Bushelman started the contest but the latter gave way to Van Dyke in the 13th when a pinch hitter was injected into the game in his place. The big southpaw only allowed one hit during the remainder of the game. Finneran and Bushelman both pitched great ball.

Carroll, the Worcester backstop, was the batting star of the game. Burkett's diminutive catcher banged out three singles and a double in his four trips to the plate. Aubrey, Cooney, Halstead and Finneran all contributed feature plays which cut off sure runs. The score:

ATTEMPT TO LYNCH MAN

Mob of Seven Hundred Foiled by Sheriff

CARUTHERSVILLE, Mo., Aug. 11.—A mob of several hundred farmers, bent on lynching a negro who attacked Mrs. Ollie Johnson at Canady, six miles south of here was foiled by Sheriff Stubbfield and his deputies yesterday. The officers placed their prisoner in an automobile and outdistanced a score of other machines that pursued them. After a series of fights from one town to another, barely escaping the enraged farmers in each instance, Stubbfield flagged a train at a small station and took the negro to Cape Girardeau.

SULZER'S PREDICAMENT

For a long time movements to place Governor Sulzer of New York in an unenviable light before the people have been characterized by him as attempts at political blackmail. He almost established this view in the public mind, and for a while it looked as though the attempts to hold him responsible for shady transactions would have the opposite effect from that which he claimed was designed. Now, however, evidence brought out before the Frawley investigating committee of the state of New York seems to surround him with a circle of damaging evidence from which it is next to impossible for him to escape. Admitting that the old conspiracy exists, and that selfishly-interested politicians are back of the accusations, the charges of themselves will have to be answered and answered fully before the governor can get back into the estimation of the public. It does not seem likely that he will be able to set the damaging testimony at naught.

The rock on which the political fortunes of Governor Sulzer have in all probability foundered is the old obstacle—campaign expenses. He is accused of using money sent him by admirers for campaign expenses, in private speculation in the stock market; he is said to have failed to account for several checks in his sworn statements of campaign expenses; he is indirectly accused of paying pecuniary debts by political office. If any of these charges are sustained, finally, he is not a fit person for governor of New York or public office of any sort. He even places himself outside the pale of sympathy, for such a flagrant use of the privileges of his position is as sordid as can well be imagined. Not all the water in the Hudson is sufficient to wash away pecuniary greed and dishonor from the hands of the governor.

This example of alleged corruption calls attention for the thousandth time to the insidious danger of the money element in politics. Gradually efforts have been made to prevent such actions as Governor Sulzer is accused of by laws compelling the filing of sworn statements of campaign expenditures, and the names of contributors to the party funds, but the situation in this regard is still far from perfect. Money, of course, must be spent, but it ought to be spent by some centralized committee which is not directly controlled by the candidate for office. If the methods are open, there is no need for secrecy; every item of income and expenditure should be published fully. The individual running for office should not have the handling of the campaign funds. Admiring friends who send checks to these aspirants personally only place grave temptation in their path, especially when, as in the case of Sulzer, the candidate for office is financially embarrassed.

It is a healthy sign of the public mind at present that revelations of political scandals involving the expenditure of money are not passed over lightly. Gradually the people have grown to see that corruption in politics is at the root of practically all other legislative evils and they are calling for redress. Even when the act of corruption does not include a monetary consideration directly the public calls for strict honesty. More pressing still will be their cry for reform if it is shown, as it is likely to be in the case of Sulzer, that the charges made against a politician involve the lowest form of self-seeking public dishonesty.

ROUND THE WORLD

When, about 40 years ago, Jules Verne wrote the story of Phileas Fogg, who went "round the world in eighty days," a few wise people solemnly predicted that such a feat was not outside the boundaries of possibility. Undoubtedly those who were advanced enough to predict the possible accomplishment of the then supposedly marvelous feat thought of it in the same way as we laconically predict airship routes across the Atlantic. And yet there are some people living who then read the clever story of Jules Verne with wonder and admiration and who now read in the daily papers of the earth that a few days ago John Henry Mears had circled the globe in something less than thirty-six days. Can one imagine a better commentary on human progress in the matter of transportation?

One reflecting on this splendid achievement of Mears will discover some interesting avenues of thought. First of all it will convince him that it is in 40 years the world has progressed so much that though an imaginary circling of the globe in 80 days was once a wonder, the reality of 35 or 36 is received calmly. It is not well to be too skeptical about scientific predictions for the future. Then again when the earth can be entirely circled in five weeks, it is not strange that there are men who speak of a future universal brotherhood instead of the narrower lines of the sectional patriotism of the present. Forty years from now men may be ready to believe that the whole earth is their common country and not a little part of it. When they do, there is no habit to be much wrangling over Russian trade treaties or the collection of Panama canal tolls. Perhaps 40 years is too brief for the coming of such an ideal, but it does not seem far from the ideas of a William Jennings Bryan that the marvelous 80 days' trip of Phileas Fogg from the real 35 days' trip of John Henry Mears.

Incidentally, we must also hope that the trip of Mears will have a Jules Verne chronicle. Somehow or other the more wonderful trip of the real traveler is not nearly so interesting as the imaginary voyage of Mr. Fogg. Fact is stranger than fiction, but it is not half as fascinating. In Mear's trip we miss the herd of 10,000 buffaloes, the wrecked bridge in the Rockies, the gas jet which he left burning. But even so, if Verne is in touch with earthly things, we do not blame him if he goes over to the Mars' row in Parnassus and takes a few pointers from Baron Munchausen. He must now realize that his marvelous predictions were too tame.

FATHERS' DAY

The Hon. James Hamilton Lewis, United States senator from Illinois is very anxious that the fathers of the land should receive their full share of public honor and recognition. He thinks that because we have "Mothers' Day" and "Children's Day" and hosts of other special days, fathers should be officially remembered. Now, the fathers of the land, while no doubt deeply grateful to Mr. Lewis for his zealous interest in their behalf, would be the first body to protest against the setting aside of any day to do them honor. Most fathers are too modest to wish a place in the limelight and a few of them are too timid. They have long ago been taught in a way that there is no ignoring or mistaking that their place is to "say nothing but say well." At one time it was supposed that "men must work and women must weep," but this view seems to have been grossly exaggerated, in one particular at least. Men must still work indeed and women must still have mothers' days, and budding womanhood parades and suffragette conventions. It is still true that "there's little to wear and many to keep," but poor father has to keep bustling trying to earn the little and keep the many. He is so busy that he has not much time to spend in celebrating fathers' days. We have too many of such days already and if there must be a new one he is not the proper subject for it. Poor man, the worst of the matter is the laugh that he gets on all sides when somebody proposes a special day to give him honor—and a rest.

MR. LIND'S MISSION

Mr. John Lind, special envoy of President Wilson in Mexico City and as yet none of the predicted and half expected things have happened. He may possibly be entirely ignored by the provisional government, but it does not seem probable that he will be sent out as an undesirable alien. The next few days will show whether his mission will be productive of any tangible results or whether it will end in the same vagueness and indecision which have characterized the recent attitude of the United States towards Mexico. In the meantime the manner in which Huerta will receive the American representative will be a pretty fair test of the degree of sincerity which actuates his official actions. He must be aware of the fact that the reports of Ambassador Wilson were not taken seriously by the administration, and if things are as the former ambassador represented, Huerta ought to welcome the closest investigation by a representative whose word will be headed at Washington. On the other hand, there is an evident temptation for Huerta to make political capital out of the situation, for in view of the strong anti-American feeling among all classes of the Mexican people, he may be able to restore his prestige and unite the warring factions of his people by showing a determined opposition to President Wilson's scheme of mediation. Judging from his past record he may be expected to take a middle course, placating the Mexican populace by as great a show of hostility to the American attitude as he thinks safe.

THREE CLASSES OF MEDICINES

are the Animal, Vegetable and Mineral, of which the Vegetable Kingdom furnishes by far the most and the best. Over 700 varieties of roots, plants and herbs are known by pharmacologists to have medicinal value and probably the "Indian Medicine Man" knows of as many more. It was in this most interesting study, more than forty years ago, that Lydia E. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., discovered her now famous "Vegetable Compound for Women," which has proved of incalculable value to hundreds of thousands of American women. Its wonderful success proves its merit.

Seen and Heard

Oscar W. Underwood was deprecating a hopeless tariff fight. "When you're bound to lose," said he, "why go in?" Then Mr. Underwood laughed and added: "I don't see the point in throwing down the gauntlet just in order to throw up the sponge."—Washington Post.

Arthur J. Reddington, a Lamanda Park rancher, suffered from partial paralysis of the arms and legs for several years and was considered incurable. As Reddington was holding along the boulevard the other day near his ranch the electric hum of an automobile attracted a flock of people. One drove across the road and struck Reddington full tilt on the back of the neck.

Reddington instinctively threw up his hands to his neck. When he recovered his composure he found he had also recovered the complete use of all his limbs. "What do you know about that?"

Alfred Noyes, the English poet, said at the Players' club: "You American poets are in luck. Your editors pay so well here. Why, an industrious American poet ought to be able to afford a motor-cycle, or at least a bicycle. But in England it's a different story."

Mr. Noyes, smiling bitterly, then said: "An English connection once asked a poet writer: 'Who originated that phrase, a penny for your thoughts?' 'I do not know,' he replied. 'Of course I know,' was the reply. 'It was an editor!'"—New York Times.

Ellis Root was talking about the corporation lawyer. "He isn't so much abused as he once was," said Senator Root. "A reaction in his favor has set in. In the past a corporation lawyer couldn't attend a public dinner without having some one say that of lawless trash at him."

"Lawless, Professor Lawless, taught corporation law in a famous school. He had a reputation for wit. He was always making funny cracks at modern life and society."

"A student, in answer to one of Lawless's questions, said grandiloquently: 'A lawyer's first, his rule duty, is to see that, though the heavens fall, justice is done.'"

"That justice is done," repeated Lawless, thoughtfully. "I'm, yes, exactly. And my experience has been that the lawyer who does justice oftenest is the one who first achieves a white palace in Fifth ave., overlooking the park!"—New York Tribune.

"WISH YOU WERE HERE" Got a card from Steve this mornin', dog—none his trav'lin' skin. He's an ardent traveler. Falls awritin' home again. Seems like that boy's one glory is to wander far from free. An' further off he gets, I gosh, the more he sends these picture postal cards, with photos showin' that Th' world is allus beautif'lest where you ain't livin' at. His messages reads all the same: In letters large an' clear He writes from Maine or Kankakee an' says: "Wish you was here!"

Nobody ever seems to know just when he'll go or where. We get his destination from the card that says he's settled. An' he ain't more than settled down to loaf a day or two. Till he gets thinkin' up th' names of ever' one he knows. An' then with ever' digression cent he possibly kin spare He bugs th' military church, th' depot an' th' square. He bugs 'bout everything they is in town. Both in Belvidere an' elsewhere. Then mails th' whole blame business home an' says: "Wish you was here!"

I guess he's at Niagara now; he was last time he wrote. But that don't prove conclusively he ain't in Terry Hotel. He may be down in Panama or snooping 'round in Rome. Nobody knows just where he's at—except he ain't at home!

I guess we never hear from him for a month or so. He ain't got no time to write. If some kind soul had not devised these picture postal cards, Yes, I expect if Steve would die he'd rise up from his bed To post a card to all his friends an' say: "Wish you was here!"

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Thrills

Lynn News: And possibly all of us need to learn something of sanity in our amusements. Our jaded appetites call for thrills, and new thrills, and we keep adding them even though there comes also a large element of danger. Perhaps the reason why Buffalo Bill went into bankruptcy was because he was unable to add any new thrills to his show. The public demands them. And one of these thrills comes to many people through reckless speed, or through seeing how near they can come to injuring themselves or others in an automobile.

The Summer House

Manchester Mirror: Formerly the summer house was usually thought of as connected with some exclusive colony, having stables full of horses or motors, shaven lawns, carefully tended shrubbery. Now people go out into the nearest woodland or waterside and build a little haven of rest from labor, noise, dust and the steamy air of towns. It is this may consist merely of a matchless board nailed over a framework, minus inside finish, carpets, rugs or plumbing.

Round the World

Boston Traveler: John Henry Mears, who has broken the record for circling the globe, is entitled to all the glory that he has received, for he has earned all of it. His gain upon the best time record for the making of his trip was in crossing the Pacific and this continent. He made close connections and he had invaluable assistance from railroad, steamship and other officials who could aid him. He will remain a hero in his class even after his record shall have been broken.

Mediation

New Bedford Times: Mediation in Mexico is to be the keynote of President Wilson's policy—mediation of a friendly but aggressive nature. This policy, the president hopes, is to bring about the hour of American interests in Mexico and the approval of the European nations.

If anything can settle the Mexican trouble this policy should succeed. It should bring peace and order where now there is nothing but turmoil and chaos.

Not Seated

Fall River Herald: If Mr. Bryan was a person to be seated into the cellar by adverse comment upon his behavior he would have been lost to public view long ago. For that reason, his announcement that he is going right on with his lecturing tour is not likely to occasion general surprise.

The Cool Tax

Providence Journal: As Pennsylvania has placed a new tax of two and a half per cent on anthracite coal, "Glad in his great goodness" has urged more promptly the pious George Baer, president of the coal and coke industry, to offer a ton out of the pockets of the public.

Women's Clothes

Portland Express: This rebellion against the present fashion of women's dress is beginning to take on serious proportions. The Minnesota Federation of Women's Clubs has issued a circular to the effect that it is a disgrace to the nation and in an appeal, declares that there should be some different styles for modest gentlemen.

Sing Sing

Brooklyn Enterprise: The Boston Record notes that the convicts at Sing Sing have tried various schemes, but not the hunger strike. The authorities in some cases make the hunger strike unnecessary by providing for the hunger of the prisoners much of the time so that they don't care for any more.

To Our Credit

Salem News: Americans are often accused of being the ones who carve or write their initials or names on trees. They are, it is pleasing, therefore, to know that they are not the only ones, and that, sometimes, at least, they have been outdone by the British. A group of Westerners in London told some American tourists this summer that there is only one instance of the kind in the city, and that occurred many years ago.

Improvement in Southern Colleges

In 1909 only three southern colleges had standard requirements for entrance; this year 160 announced standard admission requirements. Thus Miss Elizabeth Avery Coulton, secretary of the Southern Association of College Women, sums up the advancement that has taken place in higher education in the south in a report distributed by the United States bureau of education.

Not only in entrance requirements, but also in libraries, laboratories, buildings, and equipments of all kinds, as well as in the extremely important matter of training and ability of the faculty, Miss Coulton notes marked improvement. She attributes the advances chiefly to two agencies, the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching and the General Education Board. The former did its most valuable work through publications which revealed the wide variation in college standards that prevailed in the south, while the latter has been especially helpful through the founding of professorships of secondary education to aid the high schools in their relation to the colleges.

Together with the betterment in entrance requirements has come a decided increase in the amount of college work represented by the degree. In 1904, according to Miss Coulton, the A. B. of only two southern colleges represented four full years of college work, while by 1914 graduates of at least 25 colleges will have completed four years of standard college work.

Although emphasis is now being placed that great improvement has taken place, Miss Coulton declares that much still remains to be done. "Each of the 367 institutions in the south begins the college or university," she says, "firmly believing that it is destined to become the leading institution for higher education in its community. Nevertheless, with all the education boards, foundations, organizations, commissions and conferences working directly or indirectly in the half of the southern colleges and the development of its efficiency, there is still the hope that many more colleges may within the next 10 or 15 years be induced to stop conferring degrees and become good preparatory or industrial schools; that others may die from lack of patronage; and that the 'righteous remnant' may then be encouraged to continue to strive after ever enlarging ideals of standard and of service."

Chelsea's Oldest Woman Dead

Boston: Aug. 11.—Mrs. Hannah Cotton, the oldest woman in Chelsea, died yesterday at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Charles P. Cotton, 21 Spruce street, in her 94th year. Mrs. Cotton has enjoyed good health during all her long years of life up to a few weeks ago.

Killed Beneath Auto

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 11.—Geo. I. Ayer, 61 years of age, and a well known citizen of this city, was instantly killed about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon when an automobile, which he was riding turned turtle, falling upon him and crushing him to death.

Ayer was riding with Clarence D. Palmer, owner of the car and driving it at the time. The machine was on the Hooksett road, headed for Concord. A motorcycle and a bicycle coming south suddenly appeared ahead.

To avoid them, Palmer applied the emergency brake. The road was slippery from a recent shower. The automobile skidded and turned turtle and crashed down upon Ayer. Palmer escaped with a few bad bruises.

Ayer was employed as electrician in the Amoskeag mills. Palmer is of the firm of Palmer & Garmon, granite workers. Both are residents of Manchester.

Peace Established in ## Southeastern Europe

BUCHAREST, Roumania, Aug. 11.—The peace treaty between the Balkan states was signed at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning. In honor of the occasion the city was decorated with flags, guns were fired, bells were rung and the bands played.

A solemn Te Deum in the cathedral at noon was attended by King Charles, Queen Elizabeth, (Carmen Sylva) and the members of the royal family and the delegates to the peace conference.

The peace treaty provides that the Roumanian army shall evacuate Bulgarian territory in 15 days after its signature and the Serbian and Greek armies in three days. It also provides for arbitration by Belgium, Holland or Switzerland in the event of a disagreement over the delimitation of the new frontier.

Bulgaria engages in the treaty to begin demobilization immediately.

Rob Store Twice in One

Night—Eat and Smoke

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—Early yesterday morning a Winthrop policeman noticed a window broken in the periodical and light lunch establishment of Hannum & Tutman. On investigation it was found that the burglars had forced the front door and after helping themselves freely, had departed. But the place looked so easy they had returned, gaining entrance through a rear window, which would give them access to a part of the store they could not reach from the front.

At any rate, they partook liberally of all the good things around in the eating and drinking line, and having obtained full stomachs, they topped off with a box of the firm's best 15-cent straight cigars. When they departed for good they took a couple of unbroken boxes of cigars along for future reference. It is thought they were in the store nearly all night.

A gate tender later saw them, in company with the cigars, hosed a car for Boston. The total loss to the store is about $20.

DIDN'T WANT TO DIE

For a Bed Jumped Nimbly to His Feet When Shooting Was Suggested

The other night in the vicinity of the post office a horse laid down to rest on the cobblestones in Appleton street and the usual crowd, loaded with the usual bundle of suggestions, gathered to see what was going to happen and to dispose of said suggestions.

The horse was not very rich in flesh and to the poor hostler, who was trying his level best to arouse his slumbering nag, a boy said: "Why don't you put a blanket on yer horse, mister?" to which another archer replied: "It's too blamed 'hot. Now what'd yer suppose he'd put a blanket on him?"

"Why, I keep de stars from burnin' up th' hay inside on him," said the first boy who scooted for safety behind the federal building, from which vantage point he and several chums began to sing "Livin' here till the grass comes, the grass'll get yer fill."

A Scotchman who was standing by said the horse reminded him of "Maxwellton's brace," where "Annie Laurie" first gave her promise true. "It was so 'bony."

The horse turned a deaf ear to these jangling remarks, but that he understood what was being said was proven when his death by shooting was suggested.

After the hostler and the crowd had failed in their attempts to have the horse move, even as much as an ear, Agent Richardson of the Humane society was sent for.

Agent Richardson allowed that the animal was all right and suggested getting a large piece of sailcloth and some blankets and rolling the animal over onto them. This was accomplished, and the dead weight of the horse's body was dragged behind the portico out of the way.

"Now," said Agent Richardson, "send for the owner."

A telephone call soon brought the proprietor of the animal, when Agent Richardson explained the situation.

"Well," said the man who claimed the horse, "there's only one thing to do. If he doesn't get up in 10 minutes, shoot him."

At this the mouth of the horse opened, and after stretching out its neck in the vain attempt to hibble a few nearby blades of grass, the animal leaped nimbly to its feet.

SET FIRE TO BATH HOUSES

The Lawrence Structure
Where 11 Boys Met
Their Death Destroyed

Police Think Parent of
One of the Victims
Set the Fire

LAWRENCE, Aug. 11.—Fire, believed to be incendiary origin, last night destroyed three of the municipal bath houses, at one of which 11 boys were drowned a month ago by the collapse of a runway. The police believe that some of the foreign-born parents, crazed with grief at the loss of their child, fired the three structures in the Merrimack river, causing a loss to the city of upwards of $1500.

After the investigation following the drowning, the bath houses were closed by order of the mayor. The two on the north side of the river, where the tragedy occurred, were towed to the south side and moored beside the third. For a month they have been closed. Simultaneously last night all three burst into flames, and before help could be summoned had burned to the water's edge.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 11.—With 700 delegates present the 59th annual convention of the International Typographical union began here today in the state capitol.

The first session was confined to addresses. Very little of the convention's business will be transacted until tomorrow. Several committees have been at work here for several days and it was said that the committee on laws, one of the most important, would be ready to report soon.

IRREGULARITIES

Investigation in Mississippi's State Institutions Will Be Pressed Vigorously

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 11.—Investigation of irregularities in Mississippi's state institutions, principally the prison system, which already has resulted in the conviction and sentencing of eight men, will be pressed vigorously this week. Governor Brewer, who has headed the investigation and brought charges before grand juries which has resulted in numerous indictments, for graft and embezzlement, is now investigating stories of serious conditions at all the state prison farms.

The investigation and trials heretofore have been confined to Jackson and Brandon, but Governor Brewer and his assistants now are working at the state institutions at Indianola, Lexington, Clarksdale and Raymond.

EXPECT 50,000 KNIGHTS

Delegates Pour Into
Denver, Colorado

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 11.—It is estimated that 18,000 Knights Templar arrived in Denver yesterday and last night to attend the 32nd triennial convocation which was informally opened Saturday night. Seventy-eight special trains bearing 25,000 other knights were scheduled to arrive today.

Each train with its load of Templars was met by an escort from the Colorado commanderies and marched to their hotels. They were soon followed by Creston commandery of Burlington, Ia., and at intervals of a few minutes thereafter small armies of knights poured into the Union station.

Among the most interesting of the early arrivals today were the 200 members of California commandery No. 1, who will form the escort of honor to Grand Master William B. Melish, during the convocation. Awaiting them were 200 black horses that have been trained by an army officer. Californians mounted their steeds, and accompanied by an escort, paraded to a hotel.

PRAYERS ARE ANSWERED

Chicago People Appeal for Rain

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—Prayers for rain in the parched regions of the west were offered yesterday in several Chicago churches. During the services the tattoo of showers on the roof testified to the bounty of nature in northern Illinois.

Many of the ministers discussed experiences of droughts of other years to show the efficacy of prayer, some of them giving authentic instances where prayers for rain were answered within a few hours.

SECRETARY LANE

Issues Instructions to Expedite Designations of Land Under Enlarged Homestead Law

For the last year or more public lands in the western states have been designated by the secretary of the interior as subject to entry under the so-called enlarged-homestead act, or the 320-acre homestead act, only on petition of those who desire to avail themselves of the provision of this law. This procedure was an outgrowth of the desire of the department to designate no lands which were not actually enterable under the law in question. In order to accomplish this end the status of each tract had to be investigated to determine whether or not it was already entered, was a school section, was involved in a state selection, or for any other reason had been taken out of the class of "unappropriated" public lands which alone are enterable under this act. This search meant that with the meagre force available to the department only slow progress could be made in the designation of lands for entry under this law.

Soon after the passage of the act lands had been designated for entry under it in a body without regard to their status, the only questions determined by the department prior to designation being that the lands were surveyed, unreserved, and non-irrigable. Under this mode of procedure designations can be made with comparative rapidity, the availability of the lands for entry being determined by the applicant when he visits the local land office to file upon his claim. After the abandonment of this early procedure the law was extended to apply to North Dakota. The rule of designation by petition has been followed in that state, and the resulting delays have proved embarrassing both to the department and to the citizens of North Dakota, as well as to those of other western states.

At the suggestion of Senator Crona Secretary Lane has recently decided to revert to the earlier practice and designate the lands in large bodies after it is determined that they are non-irrigable, as required by the law. He has accordingly issued appropriate instructions to the geological survey, which is charged under the department with the preparation of the lists of lands enterable under this law. This change will have the effect of greatly expediting the designation of lands under this law.

$9000 WORTH OF GEMS STOLEN

Robbery Reported to the Police

Kennebunkport Summer Colony Aroused by
the Robbery

KENNEBUNKPORT, Me., Aug. 11.—A daring jewelry robbery was made at "Cro-nest," the summer home of Mrs. M. H. Forrest, a wealthy widow of Philadelphia, yesterday. Diamonds valued at over $9000 were obtained by the thieves, who left no clue to their identity.

Coming so close upon the disappearance of jewels valued at approximately $50,000 from Narragansett Pier, the police are of the opinion that a gang of expert crooks are doing business in New England.

The robbery occurred about 3 o'clock yesterday morning and entrance was obtained by forcing a cellar bulkhead. One of the servants was awakened by steps, but as there are numerous guests at the cottage, nothing was thought of the matter at the time.

Entering the room where Mrs. Forrest was sleeping, the intruders ransacked her bureau and dressing table, and also her writing desk without disturbing her. Apparently jewelry that did not contain diamonds was not wanted, as several valuable gold watches and other articles were left behind.

The robbery was not discovered until Mrs. Forrest arose yesterday and the local police are completely baffled. The summer colony and residents are much alarmed, fearing a repetition of the sensational breaks which recently terrorized Narragansett Pier.

Asked if she had any suspicions as to the thieves she replied: "Not the slightest. I suspect no one. The first I knew of the robbery was when I opened my bureau drawer this morning and found the jewel case gone. The thieves did not create the slightest disturbance in my room, and I was not awakened."

A STUBBORN BATTLE

Conserve Home

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Convinced that the title of their organization, National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, was too lengthy and cumbersome to carry into the fight against "votes for women," members today announced that they would be known hereafter as "Woman Conservationists." They propose to work to offset the possible effect on congress of the meeting this week of the National Council of Woman Voters and are looking forward to a stubborn battle.

"We think that putting woman into politics," said the officials of the "conservationists" in a statement issued from their headquarters here today, "and forcing her to do men's work as well as her own, is a terrible waste. We, therefore, stand as a body of conservationists. Our aim is to conserve the home and to conserve motherhood, to conserve womanhood."

Leading suffragists continue to arrive from the states having equal suffrage, to be in attendance at the conference of the National Council of Women Voters, which begins Wednesday and continues throughout Thursday and Friday. Many women prominent in club work and political life already are here.

AMERICAN CONDEMNED

Assaulted Daughter

SEUL, Korea, Aug. 11.—Mr. Mason, the American manager of the gold mines at Un-San, in northern Korea, was sentenced today to 15 months' penal servitude on a charge of manslaughter for killing a Chinese mine employee who, in the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Mason, committed a criminal assault on their 12-year-old daughter. When Mason returned home and learned of the occurrence he went out and killed the Chinaman.

In his defense today Mason pleaded the "written law" but was condemned.

An appeal against the sentence was entered at once.

Sixty-five Americans are employed in the Un-San mines, which are among the most productive in Korea. There also are large numbers of Chinese and Japanese miners.

Card of Thanks
I wish to publicly express my gratitude to the many kind friends and relatives who by flowers and messages of sympathy strove to lessen the sorrow of the recent death of my beloved husband and, especially, to publicly thank the officials of the Massachusetts cotton mill for their many kindnesses which they have shown me in my time of sorrow.

Theatre Vorons
Today the Theatre Vorons shows for the first time in Lowell the magnificent two-act production of Longfellow's poem, "Katie Robertson of Sicily." It is regarded as one of the masterpieces of the English language and the production does it full justice.

Members of the Burke T. I. Held An Enjoyable Outing Yesterday—Many Went

The members of the Burke T. I. enjoyed their annual outing to Lynn, Mass. Point and Lovers beaches yesterday and the affair was one of the most enjoyable ever held by this organization.

An automobile truck filled with the happy group left Merrimack street in front of the Burke's rooms yesterday morning and journeyed over the road through Lynn to Bass Point. The trip was full of fun, the members singing and cheering during the two hours that it took to drive to the sea shore. Arriving there the boys set out to enjoy themselves by visiting the amusement places along the midway until the dinner bell called them to one of the popular hotels where a six course dinner was served.

After dinner the boys again boarded the auto and many of them reached where the greater number of the members enjoyed a dip in the cool waters. Others wandered about the beach and enjoyed themselves at the pit, mystic maze and other places. The return trip was made at a reasonable hour and all declared it the "best ever."

No Comparison
The light, airy, sanitary offices of the New Sun building compared with those of any other office building in Lowell are so much more to date that not only the occupants but their patrons are delighted with them.
